GERMANY'S BIG ARMS PURCHASES

BREACH OF TREATY BY U.S. ALLEGED

HUNDRED PLANES A MONTH

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Sept. 18.

Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate Committee on munition manufacture investigation, said that he had obtained evidence that the United Aircraft Company last April had six agents soliciting business in Germany. The company's business grew from $6,000 to $1,445,000 during the first eight months of 1934, he added.

Senator Nye went on to say that it was gossip among American aeroplane manufacturers that Germany was commissioning a hundred machines a month and would have 2,000 military planes by the end of the year.

Mr. C. W. Deeds, Treasurer of the Pratt Whitney Company, said he had not heard this gossip but testified that engines from his firm sold to Germany could be synchronised for firing of machine-guns through their propellers. It had been reported, he said, that the State Department had warned American munitions manufacturers that their German sales campaigns were contrary to the Versailles Treaty.—United Press.

FOREIGN SUBSIDIES FOR GERMAN PLANES.

Washington, Sept. 18. Further sensational reports regarding Germany's acquisition of aircraft, were read at the continuation of the Arms Inquiry to-day.

One was that Germany was using foreign funds to subsidize her own aircraft manufacturers.

Other evidence purported to show that on August 5, 1933, the State Department at Washington took cognizance of the sale of American aeroplanes to Germany and warned the exporters that the United States Government was opposed to such trade.—Reuter.

LONDON CAMPAIGN FOR PEDESTRIAN SAFETY

BELISHA BEACONS MARK DANGER CROSSINGS THROUGHOUT CITY

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, Sept. 19, 8.55 a.m.)

London, Sept. 18. Twenty thousand Belisha Beacons are to be erected throughout London for the protection of pedestrians, as a part of the campaign to reduce the number of tragic deaths.

These sign-posts have been alliteratively named after the Minister of Transport, Mr. Horne-Belisha, and consist of illuminated yellow globes placed seven feet high at the recently instituted pedestrian crossing-places, on busy streets.

It has been demonstrated that the light reflected by the globes is visible a quarter of a mile away or the necessity of caution.

Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, proud owner of the Endeavour, which now has two wins to her credit.

DEMENTED MAN RUNS AMUCK

Terrorises Residents of Tongshan

Tientsin, Sept. 18. According to a report from Tongshan, residents there were terrorised last night when a demented man ran amuck in the streets. He dashed about from street to street, brandishing a big knife in his hand and attacking anyone in his way.

The whole city was in a pandemonium for almost two hours as pedestrians stampeded in all directions, shops were closed and whistles blown for police help.

Despite the fact that a large force of armed police turned out, the demented man is still at large. It is reported that he has fled toward a nearby village.

Altogether, seven persons suffered knife cuts, and one has succumbed to his injuries.—Central News.

FAMOUS TROPHY IN SOPWITH'S GRASP

AMERICAN DEFENDER GAINING AT FINISH

OWNER'S COMMENT ON GREAT RACE

MR. T. O. M. SOPWITH'S YACHT

ENDEAVOUR, CHALLENGER FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP, HAS WON ITS SECOND CONSECUTIVE RACE AGAINST THE AMERICAN DEFENDER, RAINBOW, AND REQUIRES ONLY ANOTHER TWO VICTORIES TO CAPTURE THE TROPHY FOR BRITAIN. BARRING ACCIDENTS, THE BRITISH BOAT IS EXPECTED TO WIN, THOUGH THE RAINBOW HAS SHOWN THAT SHE IS A DANGEROUS RIVAL.

When the Endeavour crossed the finishing mark yesterday she had a lead of only fifty-one seconds, and the Rainbow was gaining perceptibly.

Once again Mr. Sopwith's masterly seamanship and strategy gave him an advantage in the race. His amateur crew, however, gave him splendid co-operation. Endeavour established a record for the triangular course.

Newport, Sept. 18. England has a grip on one handle of the America's Cup, and it is now odds on that she will win this trophy for the first time in history. To-day, Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith steered his challenging yacht Endeavour to a second victory in the series against the Vanderbilt Syndicate's Rainbow, covering the triangular course in record time and crossing the winning line 51 seconds ahead of the defending boat.

For the first time ever, England holds a lead of two clear wins; and never before has she been so near to winning the Cup as at present. The American critics are convinced that the Endeavour must now win the event, and are merely debating whether it will be in four straight races.

The Endeavour led all the way to-day, turning the second course at six and a half minutes to two, with the Rainbow trailing three and a half minutes later.

SOPWITH MAGNIFICENT.

Two miles from the second mark the Endeavour led by fully 300 yards. The Rainbow remained on the port tack, hoping to get the windward berth should close work be necessary.

At the buoy it was thought the boat was rounding the second mark first, but the Endeavour quickly indicated that this was not so and it was obvious that, barring accidents, the Endeavour was a certain winner.

Mr. Sopwith was sailing the yacht magnificently, repeating his high class seamanship of the previous day.

Both ships set their Genoa immediately after the turn. The Endeavour's time for the windward leg was one hour, 17 minutes and one second, which beat the Cup record, established by the Reliance in 1903 by two minutes and 57 seconds.

At 2.50 p.m., the Endeavour crossed the winning line to achieve her second victory in succession. The Rainbow was 51 seconds behind.

To the Endeavour also fell the distinction of breaking the record for the triangular course set by the Enterprise in 1930. The Endeavour completed the race in 2 hours 50 minutes 40 seconds, and the Rainbow in 2 hours, 51 minutes, 25 seconds.

When a mile from the finish the Endeavour was 800 yards ahead of the Rainbow, and although it was the chief reason the Rainbow

INQUIRY ON DEATH SHIP

MORRO CASTLE EXAMINED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, September 18, 4.10 a.m.)

Asbury Park, Sept. 18.

Members of the Board of Inquiry investigating the Morro Castle disaster, to-day boarded the fire-blackened hulk which lies off the beach here.

They made a minute examination, but members of the press were not allowed to accompany them. Officials of the Ward Line, owners of the Morro Castle, rigorously enforced the exclusion order against newspapermen.

Meanwhile, the authorities are preparing to question thirty members of the crew of the liner, to determine whether their evidence is worth the establishing of a Grand Jury.

A photostatic copy of the Morro Castle's log has been supplied to the attorney in charge of the investigation, Mr. Walsh.—Reuter Special.

MODEST WINNER PRAISES CRAFT

WON IN SPITE OF LAMENESS

Newport, Sept. 18.

Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, owner and navigator of the British America's Cup challenger, interviewed after the race to-day, was "elated but modest."

He praised his craft, saying he was almost pleased they had torn the big Genoa jib at the start, since it showed that the Endeavour could win even though lame.

The jib split above the clew when it caught in a hank. "We were unable to get it again on the last leg because of the split," said Mr. Sopwith. "We were forced to set a light balloon jib on the way home. We were unable to shoot

SOVIET ELECTED TO LEAGUE COUNCIL

LITVINOFF URGES REFORMS

SURER ROAD TO SECURITY

PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

Geneva, Sept. 18.

Russia to-day became a member of the League of Nations, despite the protests of the anti-Soviet bloc of smaller nations, with only three votes actually cast against her in the Assembly.

Thirty-nine nations supported the admission of the Soviet and three abstained from voting.

Immediately after her election to membership, the Assembly voted the Soviet a permanent seat on the League of Nations Council. There were no dissenting votes, but the same ten still refrained from participation.

The League President, M. Richard Sandler of Sweden, in a speech of welcome, said the presence of the Soviet delegation at Geneva proved that the tendency of the states is to work towards universality, despite the differences of race, language, religion and political systems, and towards world harmony, with the distant ideal of united humanity.

LITVINOFF SPEAKS.

There was some applause as M. Maxim Litvinoff, Russia's famous Foreign Commissar, ascended the rostrum.

He confined himself, for the most part, to an explanation of the Soviet ideology and declared:

"The failure of the Disarmament Conference compels us to seek a more effective means to preserve peace."

"Peace and security cannot be organised in the shifting sands of verbal promises and declarations. We should establish that any state is entitled to demand from its neighbours guarantees for security and that such a demand should not be considered as an expression of mistrust," he added.

M. Litvinoff enumerated passages from the Covenant of the League of Nations that he would like to see revised. For example, there were Articles XII and XV, relating to legislation in certain instances of war; Article XXII on mandates; Article XXIII which omits undertakings to ensure race equality; all of which, he considered, needed to be improved.

NO RESPONSIBILITY.

M. Litvinoff emphasised that a new member of an organisation such as the League of Nations could not be held morally responsible for decisions made without its concurrence, before it had a voice in the decisions.

The Soviet, he pointed out, does not propose at present to co-operate in the International Labour Office, but the League Secretary General would be appointed to the League Secretariat, together with several high officials of various departments, he promised.—Reuter.

The following ships are expected to be in wireless communication with Hongkong to-day:—Taiping, Penang Maru, Glenogle, Touring, Kumang, Hannah, Moller, Saxidava, President, Plence, Maron, Coburn, Kana Maru, etc.

HOLLAND FACES HEAVY DEFICIT

Drastic Slashing Of Expenditure

The Hague, Sept. 18. A deficit of 92,992,000 guilders is anticipated in the 1935 budget, it was revealed at the opening of the Dutch Parliament to-day.

But drastic cuts in expenditure will reduce the deficit to only 762,000 guilders, according to the Ministry.

The estimates include a contribution of 12,000,000 guilders towards the Navy in the Dutch East Indies.—Reuter.

FRESH STRIKE RECRUITS

THOUSANDS JOIN U.S. WALK-OUT

New York, Sept. 18.

Another 100,000 workers will be affected by the decision of the Executive Council of the United Textile Workers to authorise the Strike Committee to call out all allied groups at the discretion of the Labour leaders.

The groups affected by this new order are the dying rayon underwear, knitted goods, carpet and rug industries.

The Executive Council stated that their walk-out would be called by next Monday.

An independent survey shows that 421,000 persons are idle as a result of the textile strike.—Reuter.

CHINA MAY SEEK PERMANENT SEAT

DISAPPOINTED AT NON-ELECTION

Nanking, Sept. 18.

Indicating that China might agitate for the allotment to her of a permanent seat on the League Council, a spokesman of the Nanking Foreign Office made an official statement to-day commenting on China's failure to secure election for another term as a non-permanent member on the Council.

He said that before the election took place China realised that immense difficulties were in her way in securing reelection, as, in achieving this object, she had to seek support from among at least two-thirds of the members of the League Assembly in accordance with a resolution adopted by the League Assembly in 1922 and another adopted in 1923.

However, China would still venture to offer herself as candidate for reelection because China, from the point of view of geography and population, was an important nation in Asia and was in "close co-operation" with the League. Unfortunately, China's belief that the majority of the member states of the League would join her in these viewpoints had not been fulfilled. The Chinese people were greatly disappointed. With China absent, the League Council would be entirely Europeanised, concluded the spokesman.—Central News Agency.

DR. KOO'S FEELINGS.

Shanghai, Sept. 18.

Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to Paris, speaking on China's failure to secure election as non-permanent member on the League Council, said that it meant the defeat of the policy of co-operation between the East and the West at the League of Nations.—Central News Agency.

London, Sept. 18.

No Such Place as "Hollywood"

STORY OF COLONY

It is a strange anomaly that Hollywood, one of the most romantic cities of the world, is a community without corporate existence, a place that thrives under a glamorous non-de-plume.

Few people realise that Hollywood is not the official designation of the place that yearly produces over 400 motion pictures; that the Post Office does not recognise it officially; that it is not the home of the stars; and that Hollywood legally passed out of existence before the first motion picture was made in California.

The truth is that Los Angeles, Burbank, Culver City, Westwood and Universal City are the homes of the motion picture studios, and the stars live in Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, and Malibu Beach.

The place commonly called Hollywood had its beginning in August 1887, when some 160 acres of land owned by Horace Wilcox was divided into small farms.

This community, lying eight miles west of Los Angeles, did not receive its official name and charter until 1903, when its 1,400 citizens voted to incorporate. In 1910 Hollywood became a part of Los Angeles, and thus lost its corporate identity.

A year later the Nestor Company leased a tavern, and produced "The Law of the Range," a two-reel picture that was destined to centralise motion picture production in Southern California. Within six months three or four other studios were operating among orange orchards and wheat fields.

There were times in the early days when the city of Los Angeles seemed to resent referring to its thriving suburb as Hollywood, but the name had become so romanticised by the colour of its people and its industry that a change was impossible.

To-day the community pays its taxes to Los Angeles. Hollywood's population is estimated at 180,000, and 90 per cent. of its citizens are reliant upon its main industry. The community boasts of its own Chamber of Commerce, twenty churches, several of America's largest theatres—and no pawnshops.

WHISTLER FILM.

Preparations are well to the fore at the Universal Studios for a production called "My Mother," to be made around the famous painting of his mother by the artist Whistler.

The whole life and story of the creator of the great masterpiece are to be included in the script.

Whistler, an American, came to Europe in 1867, and from then until his death in 1903 he made a great name for himself as an etcher in both Paris and London. When he first exhibited paintings in oils he greatly puzzled the critics. Ruskin described one of his "nocturnes" as "a pot of paint flung in the public face," and for this criticism Whistler brought an action for libel, but was only awarded one farthing damages without costs.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW.

No fewer than forty-four films were scheduled to be screened at the International Cinematographic Exposition to be held in Venice during August.

Britain is represented by five entries—A Grierson short, "Contact," "Blossom Time," "The Private Life of Don Juan," and "Man of Aran."

America will be represented by "The Invisible Man," "It Happened One Night," "Little Women," "Death Takes a Holiday," "White Heat," "Wonder Bar," "Mystery

FASHION NOTES

The evening silhouette is still cast in the long, slim mould that is the ideal of 1934, but somehow it seems better fitted than formerly.

The plain, bias-cut dresses that had only the smallest of variable details, have given way to dresses which have pleats, ruffles, floating panels, big easies, wings, and many different kinds of individual departures from the straight and narrow line. Flowers play a prominent part in the mode, and feathers add to the frivolous atmosphere. Capes, made entirely of ostrich feathers, swirl about evening dresses. Some are even quite long, and smother the wearer from chin to knee.

For some reason—or other, ostrich feathers are used in Paris with the most extraordinary materials. One loose coat seen the other day and worn by a well-known Parisienne, was in coarse blue linen trimmed with blue ostrich feather flues, and topped a black taffetas frock.

TRIAL ENGAGEMENT?

Miss Merle Oberon, the British film actress, who has now announced that she is engaged to marry Mr. Joseph Schenck, the American film magnate, left Nice for London. Mr. Schenck also left Nice, but he is going to America.

"I am coming back to Europe in a month's time," he said, "and I hope that my wedding with Miss Oberon will take place in England soon after that."

According to another report the engagement is a "trial one." Mr. Schenck said: "I love the girl and she loves me, so we have decided on a trial engagement. I naturally don't want my wife to go on with film work after marriage, but she won't abandon her career."

BABY'S BED

Aids To Restful Sleep

By Olive Roberts Barton

I don't wonder that some children hate to go to bed in hot weather.

If you've seen what I've seen here and there, in the way of beds and bedding for babies and little children, you wouldn't wonder about their distaste.

You know that hot feel even of a smooth sheet over a firm mattress when you touch the bed on a hot night. You are sure that there must be a stove under it with a special burner where your torso touches.

How would we feel if we had a mattress that sagged like a hammock in the middle, and over it a pad and a rubber sheet, perhaps another pad for good measure and then a rumpled sheet over that, holding in plain heat waves in every fold? A strong smell of ammonia added won't help any.

KEEP BED SMOOTH, ODOURLESS.

Put this bed over in a corner somewhere, let some one close the door and leave us to our misery.

Would we yell? No, we would feel like hunting up a weapon and going out for honest prey. We certainly would vault over those high sides (perhaps the winter shields are still on) and get out of that place so we could live.

A baby's or child's bed should be flat, smooth and wrinkleless and without any odour of urine.

There should be a bit of rubber sheeting drawn tight over the mattress (rinsed and sunned each day) but it should not extend up under the head. It causes head sweating.

If baby has a pillow of "feathers" take it away. Use a piece of something (not wool) folded flat and covered by a cool slip. Pillows are seldom used for babies, but if he has the habit, break him in to a very flat cool one.

FLOOR SLEEPING ADVISABLE.

Now pull his bed away from the corner, out where the night breeze, if any, can circulate freely.

Of course, this is taking it for granted that any change in weather is not going to catch any one napping, or that the house is not on a mountain top where nights mean blankets and coziness.

Beds need to be made flat, sheets pulled tight, pillow slips smooth, and a whole general appearance of neatness should pervade.

In the daytime the baby doesn't need a pillow to sit on in his perambulator. Fold something (not woolly) under him flat. A bit of hardness is good for a baby anyway.

"Can I sleep on the floor, Mummy?" asks small Charles.

Don't get that "impossible" look in your eyes, mother. Why not? A clean sheet, a flat cool floor—well, you know best, but I know what I'd take if my bed was a hot box of discomfort and the mercury was grinning from the top of the tube.

We are trying out the engagement for that reason.

PEACE WORKERS' TASK
IN GRAN CHACO

Paz for nearly a month, and no publication has been authorized in connection with his activities there. The Foreign Office here, however, admits that these are of a "confidential character."

One fact stands out crystal clear in the Santiago press. The Chileans are obsessed with their "more trade" complex and are determined to use diplomacy and every other legitimate means to push their commercial relations with Pacific neighbours who are ready to reciprocate.

Bolivia offers considerable scope to Chilean capitalists and exporters, while the recent flip to tin has increased the freight business on the northern railroads that pass through Chilean territory. Trade with Paraguay is nonexistent.

'PEACE OF MIND'
For Parents Through
Baby's Own Tablets.

Baby's health vitally concerns both the mother and father, and only when baby is healthy and happy can they enjoy full peace of mind. A young child's health depends on the watchful parental care bestowed upon it, and providing a few simple rules of conduct are followed, all will be well.

Fresh air, exercise, regular feeding and freedom from constipation will ensure the progress and welfare of the little one. To prevent constipation in infants and young children there is nothing better than an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. The tablets are mildly laxative and do not gripe or purge. They are the prescription of a doctor who specialised in children's ailments. Thoroughly effective and in no way harmful or injurious. They can be given to delicate children or the youngest infant in arms with perfect safety.

Parents all over the world have adopted Baby's Own Tablets as a reliable corrective for the minor health troubles of their children. The tablets quickly relieve indigestion, break up colds and croup, check diarrhoea, expel worms, allay fever, and ease the pains of teething. Obtainable at chemists everywhere.

Can You Identify Strange Pictures?

Star's Name

Descriptive Line

If you've guessed all the entrants in the contest so far, here's one that will stick you. You ain't seen nothing yet! The photographer (careless fellow!) did an especially bad job on this picture. It looks all black, doesn't it? But never you mind, you can tell who it is, can't you? That's right—the kid himself!

And now that you know who it is, what about those five adjectives? Can you get those down in a jiffy? Remember, there have been three pictures published before this one, and to-morrow completes the contest. At the end of the fifth day, send all your material identifications and five adjectives in reference to each of the stars shown, to the Management, Alhambra Theatre.

To the ten persons who get the right names and the most appropriate descriptive words will be awarded two tickets each.

All the stars who are being portrayed in this contest are featured in "Wonder Bar," the new big musical hit coming to the Strand on Monday. And if you missed the first issues of the contest, you can obtain copies of the papers by calling at the office of the "Telegraph."

To-morrow is the last day of the contest! Don't give in now—stick with it, and perhaps you'll be one of the lucky prize-winners. And even if you aren't, it's a lot of fun, isn't it?

Remember, "Wonder Bar," is the First National hit adapted from the musical drama which played for more than five years in the leading cities of the United States and Europe. The film version stars Kay Francis, Dick Powell, Al Jolson, Ricardo Cortez, Dolores Del Rio, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, and many others.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGEMARKET FIRMER YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: Stocks firmed up, due to the improvement in steel production, but at the close most issues were receding from the day's high levels, owing to the generally pessimistic atmosphere. Bonds were irregularly higher, featured by the firmness of United States Government issues. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were upward. Wheat prices were downward, due to reports of favourable weather conditions in the Argentine. S. C. & F. New York office cables: The stock market developed a moderately firm tone as the Security Exchange Commission announces a conservative regulation programme. There is no outstanding news. Automobile production totalled 42,900 cars and trucks during the week ended September 13th. Business failures for the week ended September 13th totalled 199, against 174 last week and 275 failures during the corresponding period of last year, 530,000. New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: Cotton: Favourable crop and weather reports, poor exports, a slack domestic market and political and financial uncertainty are preventing outside participation, which is necessary for any sustained advance. There is continued agitation for the repeal of the Bankhead Act. Grain: Fears of imports of wheat, copious rains in the South-west and general apathy on the part of Traders caused a narrow market. The tone was steady today and the cash position remained strong. Rubber: The market is dull and featureless. Sugar: The market ruled quiet, but barely steady, awaiting development.

NEEDLESS OFFENCE

A lot of needless pother has been raised in connection with the admission of Russia to the League of Nations. At a time when the League's stock has fallen somewhat low by the withdrawal of Japan and Germany, it might have been thought that the willingness of another Great Power to enter the League, and thereby pledge its adherence to the principles for which it stands, would have been unanimously welcomed. Instead of that, however, we find several of the smaller States indulging in attacks on the Soviet which are not only out of place but which display an ill-grace which cannot but be regretted. Even Belgium, which abstained from voting, was compelled to concede that Russia's entry would enlarge the League's sphere of influence. It is a pity that this consideration did not prove sufficiently weighty to turn the scales in favour of a positive Belgian vote in the Soviet's favour, or induce the opponents of admission to pause before offering a gratuitous affront to the new member. In the main, the objections raised to Russia's entry have been based on the Soviet's political and economic principles. These, however, are in reality no concern of the League. Every country has a right to its own ideas under these heads. Indeed, there is already an amazing variety of political and economic concepts represented by the members of the League. Uniformity on these matters is not possible, even if it is desirable. Representatives of democracies and dictatorships sit side by side at the League deliberations, so that the addition of a new member with a distinctive outlook on world politics and economics need not raise undue fears for the future. The Soviet's subversive past propaganda in foreign countries, without question aimed at the existing order of things, may cause some qualms, but Russia well knows that, as a member of the League, her actions will be closely scrutinised, and she may well be disposed to walk more circumspectly in the future. In any event, she must be fully conscious of the obligations which membership of the League implies. One decided

NOTES OF THE DAY

TALKING TO EUROPE

By next summer Hongkong will be able to converse by radio telephone with points in Europe. That is to say, anyone who is anxious to speak to London or Paris or Berlin may do so at a cost of 24 or 25 for three minutes. The system will consist of a Hongkong hook-up with Canton, a relay from Canton through Shanghai, and thence to the station one is calling. One of those indices of progress and modernisation which from time to time crop up in the East, is this radio telephone link promised by a Telephone Administration official from Canton. While the Hongkong Telephone Company is not known to be actively interested in the project, it is probable that the scheme will have its enthusiastic co-operation. Anything which may bring this great commercial centre of the East into more direct communication with the business of the West must serve a useful purpose.

SWIFTER MAILS

There is reason to believe that the time is near for the welding of still another link between Hongkong and Europe: the institution of an air mail, and possibly a passenger service. When Imperial Airways completes its London-Singapore-Australia service, it is hoped that a branch of the sky-way will be thrown north to Hongkong. This, probably more than a radio telephone system, would bring the Colony closer to home centres and to another valuable trade area in New Zealand and Australia.

KEEPING IN STEP

While these developments are somewhat remote and, to the man in the street, of no particular significance, they are assuredly of interest to those who appreciate that a port such as Hongkong cannot afford to lag behind competitors. Obviously anything which will procure for Hongkong more rapid communication with her customers must serve a useful purpose. Britain is generally quick to grasp a commercial opportunity and is spending large sums to provide a rapid air service to her dominions, to Australia, and to Canada. Imperial Airways planes are already maintaining a splendid schedule to India, Egypt, and Africa. The time is not far distant when even the remotest corner of the Empire will be within a few days, or hours, of London. When that time comes for Hongkong she can congratulate herself that she is in step with the times.

SIGNS OF REVIVAL

While the signs of a revival of trade are not yet easy to find in this Colony, there are definite indications in other parts of the Empire that an era of greater prosperity has arrived. In Australia, Premier Lyons recently discovered that instead of a deficit of approximately £2,000,000 he was going to have a surplus of almost that amount. Unemployment had decreased 10 per cent, credit had been restored, taxation was decreased, and so on. In Canada the annual trade figures jumped about $30,000,000, half of the advance being in inter-imperial commerce. These and the even more encouraging figures from Britain, are a fairly accurate barometer of British business. Hongkong, it is probable, will presently feel the quickening of enterprise.

CAUSE FOR TROUBLE

In New York there is a gentleman who has made millions out of strikes. For years he has been supplying big industrialists with strike-breakers, and the business has been a profitable one. And while the present era has put a lot of business his way, he does not like the signs and portents. "I've been in this business a long time," he says. "I'm no chicken. I've made millions breaking strikes in this country. There's plenty of trouble ahead. . . . We're going to be lucky if we save this country from a revolution." It is probable that he is taking an unduly pessimistic view of the situation. But it might be added that if the workers of America ever do get into a revolutionary mood, one of the prime causes will be the activities of men who make a business of supplying professional thugs to act as strike-breakers, guards and strong-arm men in industrial disputes.

gain arising from the Soviet's presence at the League deliberations will be her realistic attitude on the disarmament question and her logical approach to the question of defining aggressive conduct. On these issues, Russia has much that is worth while to contribute to the pool of international thought. Striking a balance, there can be no question of the desirability and wisdom of Russia's admission to the League. At only one time for regret is that the invitation has not been unanimous.

PEACE WORKERS' TASK IN GRAN CHACO

Chile's diplomatic dispute with Paraguay is another challenge to Pan-American peace promoters, according to opinion in the South American capitals. It is held to emphasize the dangers to continental concord, if American—using the term in the New World sense—is unable to bring the Chaco warring parties to negotiation or arbitration.

There is no one in the South American chancelleries who would seriously suggest that this country could be drawn into the Chaco jungle war, but there is an almost unanimous fear that the Pacific and Atlantic neighbours of the belligerent powers may be split into opposite camps, one group backing up Paraguay and the other Bolivia and all forgetting their common Pan-American obligation to concentrate on the localisation and termination of the present conflict.

There is much superficial evidence to support the allegations of encroachment that Chile has been backing up the Bolivian cause but the bulk of it arises from geographical contiguity and a natural desire to see the La Paz Government obtain an outlet via the Atlantic which would dissipate Chilean anxiety regarding its own paramount position on the Pacific coast.

It always has to be remembered that part of what is now the northern Chilean seaboard used to be Bolivian territory. It was conquered by Chile in the Pacific war of 1879 and confirmed in its possession by the Antofagasta treaty of 1904. Since that time, until oil forced it to look toward the Atlantic, Bolivia entertained ideas of reversion—which was a continual embarrassment for the Chilean administration. Even up to the time of the Tacna-Arica settlement, between Chile and Peru, Bolivia had hopes that the original American proposal of a buffer coastal strip for it would be accepted.

When Chile and Peru settled their own differences without taking Bolivia into account, La Paz decided that it must concentrate on an outlet via the Atlantic. It was encouraged further in this policy by the fact that the newly-developed oil must naturally be piped the same way. But, in looking toward the Atlantic, Bolivia comes into conflict with Argentina as well as Paraguay. The definite threat to Paraguay inevitably led to war, but, to all appearances, Argentina is equally determined to arrest Bolivian progress. It has been alleged, though never definitely proved that the Buenos Aires Government has facilitated Paraguayan resistance to Bolivian designs.

It is natural, therefore, that with Argentine and Chile separately sympathetic to two different solutions to landlocked Bolivia's international problem there should be some diplomatic fears that Santiago and Buenos Aires may be jockeyed into opposing camps. Fortunately, the two countries never have been on such friendly terms as to-day, and the almost remarkable fact is witnessed of Argentine taking charge of Chilean affairs in Asuncion while Minister Gallardo Nieto is on "vacation."

An impartial survey of the editorial opinions of the Argentine and Chilean press demonstrates a unanimous desire of the two nations to remain cool and dispassionate. Indeed, as La Nacion points out, the incident between Asuncion and Santiago has served as a fresh challenge to the two nations, Chile and Argentina, in company with Brazil, to initiate a new effort to bring Paraguay and Bolivia to peace. Foreign Ministers Saavedra Lamas and Miguel Cruchaga, in their cordial consultations, have proved that if there has been an attempt to sow dissension the seed has fallen on stony ground.

Chileans, as a whole, take the diplomatic quarrel serenely. Considering that this is the proudest and most patriotic state in all South America, there is a surprising absence of rancour in the references to the Paraguayan attitude.

The press takes it for granted that normality will be restored soon in the relations of the two countries, and refers to the numerous offers by other powers of their good offices. The United States, Argentina and Uruguay offered their assistance directly the dispute became public.

To appease Paraguayan feeling the Government here on Aug. 8 gave orders to tighten up Bolivian frontier control to avoid the smuggling of Chilean labour to the Altiplano, and issued a statement to the effect that the recently passed legislation prohibiting Chileans to enlist in foreign armies would be strictly enforced. It added that there would be no leniency for offenders, who are liable to many penalties, including loss of pension and civic rights. Provincial authorities were ordered to forbid the contracting of Chilean labour for Bolivian mines.

Unofficially, there is much speculation regarding the transformation of Chile's diplomatic position vis a vis Bolivia. A decade ago there were few Chileans who foresaw the time when this country would be described as "very friendly" with Bolivia, long regarded as an enemy, and not on speaking terms with Paraguay, an historic and longstanding friend.

Yet it cannot be denied that Chile's relations with Bolivia have vastly improved of late, due doubtless to the new economic policy of winning markets on the Pacific seaboard to compensate for the loss of non-American foreign trade. Much Chilean mining capital is invested in the inland republic and remunerative services are rendered there in a variety of commercial ways.

But the Government and press insist that there has been no departure from neutrality. Paraguayan suspicions are described as the price Chile has to pay for geographical contiguity to Bolivia.

Apart from the diplomatic dispute there is considerable domestic speculation regarding the Bolivian mission conducted by Senator Benjamin Cohen for the Chilean Government. Senator Cohen, who is well known in Washington, where he acted as Charge d'Affaires for considerable period, has been in La

AUNT EMMA SCANS
THE NEWS.

DEAR GEORGE,
I am shocked to read of the tiger that is terrorising Kwangtung and should be glad to know if there is any danger of a resurrection of the New Territories tiger.

Although I believe the animal was thoroughly and conscientiously killed some centuries ago it would seem that it must have had a mate and that we have been nursing a viper in our bosom.

Anyway I trust the police will be able to deal with this and any Green Island monster after the practice they have had of shooting rabid dogs.

It is good news to us on the Peak that an Amusement Park is being planned. Things are frightfully dull up here and really we should love to relax sometimes.

There is many a tai pan who has only his cigar and boy for company who would become natural again on a see-saw or a Ferris wheel. And if he lost his typist on the roundabout he could make up on the swings.

Now let's have a drop of drink with the great Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, the man with a sail, who will show for a snail, the junk of the Vanderbilt kith. The end! Just because golfers would not accede to their demand for higher wages, Chicago caddies romped in nudist clothes over the golf course, putting men off their stroke and taking lady players' eyes off the ball.

It is stated however that applications for membership to the club have increased.

One dread to think what would happen if a revolt broke out among the nudist party and they appeared in public in ordinary clothes.

There would certainly be much resentment on the part of the public at the disappearance of one of their pet scapegoats. Which reminds me that it is time for bed and I must get out my nude nighties.

Your faithful,
Aunt Emma.

ANTI-LOCUST MEASURES

CONFERENCE APPROVES PLANS

London, Sept. 18. A report including resolutions adopted for consideration of the co-operating Governments was before the final session of the International Locust Conference to-day.

The resolutions deal with the general scientific problems applicable to all species of locust found in Africa and Western Asia, with the special problems of each species, and the steps to be taken for their further investigation, and, finally, with the development of existing arrangements for international co-operation in anti-locust research.

The document was signed on behalf of the Governments of Afghanistan, the Union of South Africa, Belgium, Britain, Egypt, Spain, France, India, Italy and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.—British Wireless.

ALICE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL.

HISTORY TRACED BY DR. R. M. GIBSON

Dr. R. M. Gibson, Medical Superintendent of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals, gave an interesting address to the Rotary Club at their tiffin at the Roof Garden of the Hongkong Hotel yesterday on the history and work of the hospital.

Rotarian M. K. Lo presided, and guests welcomed were Rotarian E. C. Jarman, of the Adelaide Rotary Club, Australia, from whom he brought greetings, Rotarian T. Y. Deane (Canton), Mr. J. S. Ansell (London), Dr. R. M. Alderton, Mr. R. Z. Lim, Mr. D. C. Y. (Shanghai) and Mr. W. L. McKenzie.

HOSPITAL DEFICIT

TUNG WAH APPEALS FOR SPECIAL SUBSIDY

Because the hospital under the management of the Tung Wah Committee show a deficit of about $100,000 for the current year, the Directors and permanent advisers, who include the Chinese Unofficial members of the Legislative Council and Executive Council, have held an extraordinary meeting to consider the situation.

In submitting an appeal for Government assistance, the Chairman of Directors, Mr. Lau Ping-chai, said that the Tung Wah Hospital alone faced a deficit of about $65,000, the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital at Causeway Bay $22,000, and the Kwong Wah Hospital in Kowloon $23,000.

Such a big deficit for the Colony's leading Chinese charitable institution was unprecedented for many years, said the Chairman. The big drop in the Hospital's receipts was due mainly to the decrease in rents of the property holdings of the Hospital, despite the adoption of a retrenchment policy recently when over $4,000 was saved by cutting down overhead expenses and through dismissal of some employees.

Kowloon Patients Increase. On the other hand the number of patients treated at the Kwong Wah Hospital between January and June increased by over 10,000 compared with the similar period of 1933. The increase of patients in Kowloon necessitated a corresponding increase of expenditure on medicine, which was distributed free.

Proposing an appeal to the Government for a special subsidy of $50,000 to cover the 1934 deficit, the Chairman hinted that appeals would be made to the public for subscriptions. A Chinese concert would also be organised to secure funds. After the above mentioned efforts were tried out the Directors would subscribe the remaining sum.

In the ensuing discussion the Directors also suggested the curtailment of the Tung Wah Hospital free schools, which would enable a saving of about $20,000 annually. The resolution for an appeal to the Government for a $50,000 special subsidy was unanimously passed.

Among the permanent advisers present were Sir Shouson Chow, the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotowall, the Hon. Mr. S. W. Tso, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Messrs. Li Yau-tsun, Wong Kwong-ton, M. K. Lo, Wong Kwong-tin, Fu Yick-pang, Li Pok-wai and others.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Donald Woods, who plays in his first picture as the leading man opposite Jean Muir in the Warner Bros. picture, "As The Earth Turns," opening to-day at the Alhambra Theatre, has made a careful study of story trends. He believes that stories and dramas with simple, wholesome, genuinely human qualities, such as the plot of "As The Earth Turns," are sure of a warm reception from the theatre-going public, and particularly this season. "No story for years has portrayed with such vividness and fidelity to fact the life of the New England farmer as it really is," said Woods, "with its joys, its difficulties, its compensations, its romance, and drama set forth in Gladys Hasty Carroll's novel. I have played more than two hundred roles of every conceivable nature on the stage before coming to 'As The Earth Turns,' and no part I have ever played has given me greater satisfaction than the role of the young Polish boy who feels that his destiny is on the farm, tilling the soil as his forefathers did before him. The very fact that this novel was a best seller upholds my contention." Jean Muir has the role of a farmer's daughter in this idyl of American life. Arthur Hohl, David Landau, Sarah Padden, Egon Brecher, Dorothy Appleby, William Janney and Clara Blandick have other important roles.

"Tarzan and His Mate"

The yearning for adventure that is latent in every human is given a thrilling expression in "Tarzan and His Mate," jungle film continuing the experiences of Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in Darkest Africa. The new adventure thriller opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. Almost from the start, scenes there is a series of "punch" incidents to capture audience interest. Struggles between man and beast on land in the water are blended into one of the most powerful dramas of conflict ever screened. Weissmuller was photographed under water as he fights a crocodile to the death. Herds of elephants are shown charging a safari of several hundred natives. Man-eating lions attack white jungle explorers; herds of apes, Wunderbeests, zebras and other jungle beasts are shown in action. The supporting cast includes such notable players as Neil Hamilton in the role of Harry Holt, that he played in the original "Tarzan, the Ape Man," and Paul Cavanaugh as a convincing "heavy." Forrester Harvey contributes his unique Cockney comedy highlights; with Doris Lloyd, William Desmond, Robert, and Nathan Curry, scoring in small roles. Cedric Gibbons, noted art director and designer of sets for M-G-M, enters the field of picture direction with the new film. His ability to "balance" scenes into smooth dramatic continuity has provided an artistic vigour through the entire picture.

"Hollywood Party"

"Hollywood Party," a hilarious romance staged as a spectacular musical extravaganza with an all-star cast, is having its final showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre. This much-talked-of Metro-Gwyneth production, in which a drama is embellished with music and comedy, thrills and spectacle, marks a type of entertainment entirely new to the screen. Its plot was written by Howard Dietz, author of such Broadway successes as "Flying Colours," "Band Wagon," and "There's a Guy in the Crowd," and Arthur Kooper, well-known Hollywood scenarist. Its musical numbers are the work of Rodgers and Hart, Donaldson and Kahn, and Brown and Fred, the three outstanding song teams of to-day. Its cast ranges from Lauri and Hardy to Mickey Mouse, the famous cartoon figure, which, through amazing camera effects, actually appears with human actors. Jimmy Durante, of the renowned "Schnozzle," Charles Butterworth, Polly Moran, Lupe Velez, Frances Williams, Jack Palance, Eddie Quillan, Ben Bard, Tom Kennedy and Ted Healy and Steagles are among the players.

"The Mystery of the Wax Museum"

One of the most spectacular films ever staged for a motion picture, and one which caused studio executives keen anxiety during its taking, will be seen in the "Mystery of the Wax Museum" which comes to the Oriental Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This was the burning of a set representing an old Wax Museum in London, which contained scores of figures modelled in wax. Days were spent plotting the path of the flames with mathematical precision. The flames raged most of the night while the cameras ground away. "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" is said to be one of the most exciting mystery thrillers to come to the screen. The action evolves about the strange movements of a terrible monster and a series of mysterious disappearances of famous people and the unveiling of dead bodies. Glenda Farrell, Fay Wray and Frank McHugh are featured with Awill in the part of the star player. The picture is taken from the play by Charles S. Holden.

"Wonder Bar"

It was going to be an apache dance. Dolores Del Rio and Ricardo Cortez were going to perform it during the production of "Wonder Bar," the First National mammoth musical and dramatic spectacle which opens Saturday at the Alhambra. They appear in a famed continental dance team. They performed the dance, but it was no longer an apache dance. Lloyd Bacon, director of the production, is responsible for that. Jose Fernandez, well known both as a specialty dancer and instructor on the west coast, had been engaged to supervise the routines of the Del Rio-Cortez team. He had been in the picture, but he was a number one and then came out to lunch. So had the company. Miss Del Rio

KOWLOON MATTERS

MONTHLY MEETING OF K.R.A. COMMITTEE

The usual monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association took place on the evening of September 10, in St. Andrew's Church Hall, Kowloon.

There were present:—Mr. L. d'Almeida e Castro (President), Mr. H. P. Bunjo (Vice-President), Mr. R. P. Phillips (Treasurer), Mr. C. M. Hall (Hon. Secretary), Messrs. F. C. Mow Fung, C. M. Mannors, H. F. Un, I. Murray, W. R. Rattay, Lam Ming-fan, E. Kern, Capt. Henderson and Rev. E. L. Allen.

Apologies for absence were received from Messrs. R. Panton, Li Chor-chi, B. Wylie, C. E. Torry and Lt.-Col. Matthews.

Letters with reference to the Kowloon Riding Club, the proposed Amusement Park at Hung Hom, Homantin Sanitation, Children's Bus Fares and Ambulance Transport, were read and approved.

In view of the letter from the Director of Medical Services informing the Association that there was no objection to the use of the Vehicular Ferry by motor ambulances, it was decided that the Star Ferry Company be requested not to accept stretcher cases for transport by ferry, except in special circumstances.

Ho Mun Tin Problem.

A communication was received from Government with reference to the extension of the water carriage system for the Homantin district. It was stated that a re-drainage scheme, including this area, was under consideration by Government but as this district must be included with others, the magnitude of the project was such that there was little prospect of its being carried out in the near future.

With reference to the unsuitability of the present bus stops at the Central British School, after lengthy discussion, it was decided to refer the matter to the Director of Education with a view to securing his good offices in the matter.

As a result of a communication calling attention to the present scale of fines charged for school children, it was decided to approach the Kowloon Bus Company with a view to securing a satisfactory reduction in same.

A member of the Committee having pointed out the unkempt and neglected state of the hill in Kowloon City, it was decided to appoint a sub-committee to enquire into the matter and to deal generally with other sites of historic interest.

and Cortez returned early from the studio early that afternoon. While they were waiting, just off the big "Wonder Bar" set, for Fernandez's return, they asked a couple of the "Wonder Bar" musicians, who were waiting too, to give them some music. Then they slipped into a tango. It was, as Miss Del Rio pointed out later, "only fooling." Later, Bacon asked: "Why waste a swell tango like that? Can't we combine 'em? Can't we use that, and some apache too?" Fernandez agreed that of course it could be done. An hour later he had worked out a new number with his dancing partner, Carmen Laskoux, who closely resembles Miss Del Rio and who has been acting as her "stand-in" for this picture. The picture was then taken in "Wonder Bar" was born. And it was named the Gaucho because of the wild, weird and elusive steps that characterize the Gaucho, the restless, sly race, half Indian, half Spanish, that roams over the pampas, the vast, treeless plains of South America, south of the Amazon and especially Argentina. This is but one of the many mystic dances in the internationally famous musical drama, "Wonder Bar," in which Al Jolson starred two seasons on the American stage and which was adapted to the screen by Earl Baldwin. The gipsy musical spectacles in which 300 beautiful girls appear, were created and staged by Busby Berkeley with Harry Warren and Al Dubin writing the music and lyrics. Al Jolson heads the all star picture cast while others include Kay Francis, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Fifi D'Orsay and Norma Kennedy.

"It Happened One Night"

The marked popularity of "It Happened One Night," now showing at the King's Theatre, attests the favour in which Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert are held among movie-goers. The romantic pair, teamed together on the screen for the first time in this delightful romantic comedy-drama, enact the most colourful love story in recent cinematic history. Gable appearing as the lightly ex-newspaper reporter, and Miss Colbert portraying the peevish, supercilious "Ellie Andrea," a runaway heiress making her way to New York. Robert Riskin adapted the famous "It Happened One Night" from the Cosmopolitan Magazine story of Samuel Hopkins Adams, which was published under the title of "Night Bus." In the large supporting cast are Walter Connolly, as Miss Colbert's irate father; Roscoe Karns, a travelling salesman who puts Claudette on the track; and a bus driver, and Blanche Frederico, Alan Hale, Jameson

PREFERS TENNIS TO ANYTHING ELSE

PLAYS LACROSS TO KEEP HERSELF FIT

INTERESTING INTERVIEW

New York.

What does a tennis star think about? When she is pretty and twenty and comparatively new at tournament tennis, as young Kathleen Stammers of England is, she has a variety of things on her mind. There's her back hand stroke, for one thing, that she is trying hard to improve. Then there is Coney Island that she is more anxious to see than any other spot in America. And there is dancing which she adores and has to give up during a tournament. And doubtless some thought she gives, too, to her personal appearance.

For the youthful Kay, fourth ranking player of England, making her debut on American courts, is this year's tennis beauty sensation. Not in years have the galleries made so many flattering comments about the appearance of a player.

"Even her falls are graceful," one of her admirers insisted, which remarks when repeated to Miss Stammers at Forest Hills Inn where she is staying, caused her deep blue eyes to open even wider and her sliverly laugh to ring out. She has brown hair brushed back from her face and worn in a long curly bob and a small heart-shaped face.

"I've been playing tennis since I was 10 years old," she said, precisely, in her clipped English voice, answering the inevitable question. Kay has a good deal of British reserve and while she limits her answers to exactly what you ask her.

WON FIRST TOURNAMENT AT 14.

"I am an only child and my father and mother taught me to play because they were interested in tennis themselves. We never thought of my taking it up seriously. Then, quite by accident, when I was 14, I won the junior championship of my county, Hertfordshire. Next year I won it again and played in the British Junior tournament.

"I didn't win, but the national organization took note of me and gave me coaching. That's really all there is to it, except that I love tennis and, in fact, all games.

"In winter I play lacrosse, which helps keep me in good physical condition. I play at golf, and I swim of course. But I'm not very good, really, at other games."

GLAD SCHOOLING IS ENDED.

She wasn't very good at lessons, either, the star insists, because games interested her so much. She has recently finished boarding school and she is glad. Tennis is much more fun than books. In fact, tennis is more fun than anything she has tried so far. She gave a little wriggle of pleasure at the thought.

She is great friends with the other girls on the British team and looks forward with interest to their California trip in the course of which she will visit Hollywood.

"But not," she hastily disclaimed, "with any idea of going into motion pictures. I'm no good at all at acting. And I can't keep house very well, either. At least I've never done very much of it. No, I'm afraid all I am good for is games—well, tennis anyway."

MAKES MANY SACRIFICES.

Miss Stammers thinks 10 or 11 is about the right age for a girl to start tennis, but that she shouldn't be too serious about it at first. Yet when she does decide to go in for tournament tennis, she must know what she is doing.

For, says this player, you have to give up many things you like

if you are going to succeed at all. You can't keep late hours when you're in training or playing. And you have to think of your game all the time.

"I don't diet exactly, but I do try to eat sensibly and I miss a good many parties that I should like to go to," the young tennis player admitted. "I work at keeping myself in trim, too, though I am always well. It's worth it, though—tennis is worth anything you give it. My great ambition in life is to improve my game!"

And though she hopes to get married some day, it won't be soon, Miss Stammers finished with a laugh.

Cosely Miss Stammers... as the camera caught her during the women's national championships at Forest Hills, N.Y.

How The Endeavour Took An Early Lead

FIRST PART OF GREAT YACHT RACE FULLY DESCRIBED

Mr. Sopwith's Endeavour yesterday won the second race for the America's Cup against the Vanderbilt's Rainbow. A full report of the closing stages of the great race appears on the front page, and below is a description of the contest up to the second turn.

Newport, Sept. 18.

At 11.42 a.m. the Rainbow and Endeavour crossed the starting line in the third race for the America's Cup. A drizzling rain was falling and the visibility was poor. A north-westerly breeze of about six knots was blowing at the start but diminished as the yachts nosed out into the swell.

The first leg of the triangular course is south by east on a broad reach; the second is north-west, windward, and the third, east-north-east, on a close reach.

Both yachts were using mainsail, staysail and Genoa jib at the start. The Rainbow had the weather berth, but the Endeavour crossed the line first and got a length and a half ahead. She appeared to be going splendidly.

Soon after the start, the Rainbow dived her staysail.

Five miles from the start, the Rainbow tried to come down on the Endeavour and got her wind. Both vessels heeled over beautifully.

Sopwith, sailing a fine race, kept the Endeavour ahead. Half an hour after the start, the British challenger was three to four lengths ahead and was pulling away steadily.

The sea was choppy and the spray was breaking over the bows of both yachts.

At 12.30 p.m. the Endeavour set a double clove and the Rainbow immediately followed suit. Half a mile from the first buoy the challenger was still ahead and rounded the mark half a minute ahead of the Rainbow.

After rounding the mark, Vanderbilt got inside the Endeavour and took a slight lead. At 12.43 p.m. the Rainbow went on to starboard tack and the Endeavour followed suit.

SLICK WITH SAILS.

The Endeavour waited for Vanderbilt to tack. The Rainbow's crew were very slick in handling their sails. Sopwith immediately came about and took the weather berth from Vanderbilt. Both yachts were close hauled. The Endeavour regained the lead when she came about. The Rainbow was put full and by with all canvas pulling hard, but the Endeavour still had a slight windward advantage.

Sopwith seems inclined to starve the Endeavour, trying to point a little too high.

The breeze has freshened to 15 knots. It is revealed that the Endeavour tore her Genoa jib slightly during the first leg of the race.

At 1.19 p.m. after several short tacks by which Vanderbilt tried to wiggle out of a tight corner and gain the lead, both vessels went on to the port tack, the Endeavour being slightly ahead.

The Endeavour turned the second mark at six and a half minutes to two. The Rainbow turned three and a half minutes later.—Reuter.

MURDER PROVOKED

DISCOVERY OF ADULTERY

REDUCTION OF CHARGE ASKED

Further evidence that the accused in the Shamshuipo murder trial had been legally married to the woman victim was forthcoming at the Criminal Sessions this morning, when Mr. Hin-shing Lo, for the defence, submitted that discovery of the woman's adultery by the accused constituted provocation.

Mr. Lo declared that the accused man went to the flat to confirm his suspicions, and that he had no intention of committing murder, but that he lost control of himself and stabbed her. In these circumstances, Mr. Lo contended, the charge should be reduced to manslaughter.

Keung Chi-pan is being tried for the murder of Keung Wai-lan at 211, Lai-chikok Road, on July 21, when the bodies of the woman and her lover were found, stabbed to the heart.

At the Magistracy accused was charged with the murder of both Yim Chun, the lover, and Keung Wai-lan.

The case is being heard before Mr. Justice A. D. A. MacGregor, (Chief Justice), Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, appearing with Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor for the Crown.

Accused is defended by Mr. Hin-shing Lo, instructed by Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton, of Messrs. G. K. Hall Brutton & Co.

Having indicated yesterday that the defence would be one of provocation, counsel this morning called evidence to prove that accused and Keung Wai-lan had been married.

PRESENT AT MARRIAGE

Keung Sau, aged 45, said he was the elder brother of accused. In 1929 he and several relatives witnessed the marriage of his brother and the deceased woman in the country when Keung Wai-lan worshipped the ancestral tablets, served tea, and kow-towed. A feast was given the next day.

As far as he knew, the woman had come from Macao.

Cross-examined witness said he knew Keung Shing-chuen who had given evidence the previous day that he was the father of Keung Wai-lan.

Witness agreed that he had always lived at Ho Shu village where Keung Shing-chuen also lived.

BELISHA BEACONS MARK DANGER CROSSINGS THROUGHOUT CITY

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messenger Ordinance, 1891. Received, September 18, 8.53 a.m.)

London, Sept. 18. Twenty thousand Belisha Beacons are to be erected throughout London for the protection of pedestrians, as a part of the campaign to reduce the number of traffic deaths.

These sign-posts have been alliteratively named after the Minister of Transport, Mr. Hore-Belisha, and consist of unilluminated yellow globes placed seven feet high at the recently instituted pedestrian crossing-places, on busy streets.

It has been demonstrated that the light reflected by the globes is visible a quarter of a mile away and will be of great assistance of the necessity of caution.

FAMOUS TROPHY IN SOPWITH'S GRASP

AMERICAN DEFENDER GAINING AT FINISH

OWNER'S COMMENT ON GREAT RACE

MR. T. O. M. SOPWITH'S YACHT ENDEAVOUR, CHALLENGER FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP, HAS WON ITS SECOND CONSECUTIVE RACE AGAINST THE AMERICAN DEFENDER, RAINBOW, AND REQUIRES ONLY ANOTHER TWO VICTORIES TO CAPTURE THE TROPHY FOR BRITAIN. BARRING ACCIDENTS, THE BRITISH BOAT IS EXPECTED TO WIN, THOUGH THE RAINBOW HAS SHOWN THAT SHE IS A DANGEROUS RIVAL.

When the Endeavour crossed the finishing mark yesterday she had a lead of only fifty-one seconds, and the Rainbow was gaining perceptibly.

Once again Mr. Sopwith's masterly seamanship and strategy gave him an advantage in the race. His amateur crew, however, gave him splendid co-operation. Endeavour established a record for the triangular course.

Newport, Sept. 18.

England has a grip on one of the America's Cup, and it is now odds on that she will win this trophy for the first time in history. To-day, Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith steered his challenging yacht Endeavour to a second victory in the series against the Vanderbilt Syndicate's Rainbow, covering the triangular course in record time and crossing the winning line 51 seconds ahead of the defending boat.

For the first time ever, England holds a lead of two clear wins, and never before has she been so near to winning the Cup as at present. The American critics are convinced that the Endeavour must now win the event, and are merely debating whether it will be in four straight races.

The Endeavour led all the way to-day, turning the second course at six and a half minutes to two, with the Rainbow trailing three and a half minutes later.

SOPWITH MAGNIFICENT

Two miles from the second mark the Endeavour led by fully 300 yards. The Rainbow remained on the next tack, hoping to get the windward berth should close work be necessary.

At the buoy it was thought the boat was rounding the second mark first, but the Endeavour quickly indicated that this was not so and it was obvious that, barring accidents, the Endeavour was a certain winner.

Mr. Sopwith was sailing the yacht magnificently, repeating his high class seamanship of the previous day.

Both ships set their Genoa immediately after the turn. The Endeavour's time for the windward leg was one hour, 17 minutes and one second, which beat the Cup record established by the Rolland in 1903 by two minutes and 57 seconds.

At 2.50 p.m., the Endeavour crossed the winning line to achieve her second victory in succession. The Rainbow was 51 seconds behind.

COURSE RECORD BROKEN

To the Endeavour also fell the distinction of breaking the record for the triangular course set by the Enterprise in 1930. The Endeavour completed the race in 2 hours, 50 minutes 40 seconds, and the Rainbow in 2 hours, 51 minutes, 25 seconds.

When a mile from the finish the Endeavour was 800 yards ahead and color alone under a small balloon and jib, although it was noticeable that the Rainbow was gaining slightly. President Roosevelt was a most interested spectator and followed the whole race with the keenest enjoyment.

The Endeavour completely out-sailed the defending yacht the entire way. The crew worked the sails more efficiently than heretofore, and the only time the winner appeared to be in danger was after the first turn, when the Rainbow almost pulled off a lead, only to be smartly countered and defeated by Mr. Sopwith and his crew.

It looks certain that the Endeavour will now win the series. The only question is, will it be in four straight races?

OFFICIAL TIMES

Later. The official times for the race were definitely fixed some time after the event, and reveal that the Endeavour covered the course in 3 hours 9 minutes 1 second, as against the Rainbow's 3 hours 9 minutes 52 seconds.

The record established by the Enterprise in 1930 was therefore easily beaten, the Enterprise's figures being 3 hours, 10 minutes 3 seconds.

The third race is being sailed to-morrow (Wednesday) the course being windward and leeward. — Reuter.

A cable description of the first part of the race will be found in the sports columns.

MODEST WINNER PRAISES CRAFT

WON IN SPITE OF LAMENESS

Newport, Sept. 18.

Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, owner and navigator of the British America's Cup challenger, interviewed after the race to-day, was elated but modest.

He praised his craft, saying he was almost pleased they had torn the jib. "Gonos" jib at the start, since it showed that the Endeavour could win even though lame.

The jib split above the clew when it caught in a hank. "We were unable to get it again on the last leg because of the split," said Mr. Sopwith. "We were forced to set a light balloon jib on the way home. We were unable to shoot it in close as we wished and that was the chief reason the Rain-

The Chairman of the Morro Castle disaster inquiry Board, Mr. Dickerson Hoover, following the investigations aboard the hulk of the burned ship to-day, declared that only one fire door had been shut by the crew before they abandoned ship.

"The closing of the fire doors should have been one of the first duties of the sailors on the Morro Castle," said Mr. Hoover. — United Press.

They made a minute examination, but members of the press were not allowed to accompany them. Officials of the Ward Line, owners of the Morro Castle, rigorously enforced the exclusion order against newspapermen.

Meanwhile, the authorities are preparing to question thirty members of the crew of the liner, to determine whether their evidence in regard to the establishing of a Grand Jury.

SOVIET'S PLEA FOR PEACE

FORCEFUL POLICY DEMANDED

PICTURESQUE LEAGUE ENTRY

WAR THREAT OF TO-MORROW

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messenger Ordinance, 1891. Received, September 18, 8.53 a.m.)

Geneva, Sept. 18.

Floodlights picked out the speakers as they mounted the rostrum at the session of the League Assembly to-night, cameras clicked and the delegates shuffled and shifted as they waited for the arrival of the new Soviet delegation to Geneva, elected to-night, and headed by the veteran diplomat M. Maxim Litvinoff.

M. Sandler, as President of the League, announced the voting, which resulted in Russia's election to the League and to a permanent seat on the Council with little opposition. Though the rostrum was flooded with light the rest of the hall was dim.

Very quietly M. Litvinoff and his delegates arrived and seated themselves, unnoticed. M. Sandler invited the Soviet delegation to enter and take seats. The lights went up in the hall, and there, smiling, sat M. Litvinoff. A roar of laughter greeted him.

HOPES OF PEACE

M. Sandler presently launched into a speech of welcome. "To-day marks a turning point in the League's history," he said, in effect.

M. Litvinoff spoke at great length on the necessity of organizing peace work.

"War must appear to all, he declared, as the danger of to-morrow. Everyone knows that the exponents of war are open promulgators of the refashioning of the maps of Europe and Asia by the sword. They are not to be intimidated by paper obstacles." — United Press.

POLICY EXPLAINED

He confined himself, for the most part, to an explanation of the Soviet ideology and declared: "The failure of the Disarmament Conference compels us to seek a more effective means to preserve peace."

"Peace and security cannot be organized in the shifting sands of verbal promises and declarations. We should establish that any state is entitled to demand from its neighbours guarantees for security and that such a demand should not be considered as an expression of mistrust," he added.

M. Litvinoff enumerated passages from the Covenant of the League of Nations that he would like to see revised. For example, there were Articles XII and XVI relating to legislation in certain instances of war; Article XXII on mandates; Article XXIII which omits undertakings to ensure race equality; all of which, he considered, needed to be improved.

NO RESPONSIBILITY

M. Litvinoff emphasized that a new member of an organization such as the League of Nations could not be held morally responsible.

UNMUZZLED DOGS ON SHEK-O BEACH

Local Solicitor Ordered to Pay Fines

BEACH CAMPERS BLAMED

Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, well-known local solicitor, was summoned before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning for allowing two dogs, a setter and a terrier, on Shek-O beach without muzzles at 4.30 p.m. on August 25.

Pleading guilty, Mr. Kemble explained that the dogs were usually kept inside his house, which was not more than five minutes' walk from the beach. As the result of being fed by people camping in tents on the beach, the dogs were encouraged to get down to the beach whenever the opportunity occurred. This was what happened in this case. The dogs slipped out and went on the beach. He sent a servant out after them and they were rounded up within five minutes.

Sergeant Brown agreed that the dogs were not on the beach for more than five minutes altogether. The dogs had muzzles, but they had apparently torn them off. The muzzles were hanging down from their necks.

Mr. Kemble: The dogs, please the muzzles, from each other's mouth, your Worship.

A fine of $10 in respect of each dog was imposed.

The same fine was imposed on Mrs. M. A. Whitbair, who was summoned for allowing a spaniel and a terrier, on Big Wave Bay beach without muzzles at 5.40 p.m. on August 26.

Sub-Inspector Logan stated that the dogs had no muzzles at all.

No Such Place as "Hollywood"

STORY OF COLONY

It is a strange anomaly that Hollywood, one of the most romantic cities of the world, is a community without corporate existence, a place that thrives under a glamorous non-de-plume.

Few people realise that Hollywood is not the official designation of the place that yearly produces over 400 motion pictures; that the Post Office does not recognise it officially; that it is not the home of the stars; and that Hollywood legally passed out of existence before the first motion picture was made in California.

The truth is that Los Angeles, Burbank, Culver City, Westwood and Universal City are the homes of the motion picture studios, and the stars live in Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, and Malibu Beach.

The place commonly called Hollywood had its beginning in August 1887, when some 160 acres of land owned by Horace Wilcox was divided into small farms.

This community, lying eight miles west of Los Angeles, did not receive its official name and charter until 1903, when its 1,400 citizens voted to incorporate. In 1910 Hollywood became a part of Los Angeles, and thus lost its corporate identity.

A year later the Nestor Company leased a tavern, and produced "The Law of the Range," a two-reel picture that was destined to centralise motion picture production in Southern California. Within six months three or four other studios were operating among orange orchards and wheat fields.

There were times in the early days when the city of Los Angeles seemed to resent referring to its thriving suburb as Hollywood, but the name had become so romanticised by the colour of its people and its industry that a change was impossible.

To-day the community pays its taxes to Los Angeles. Hollywood's population is estimated at 180,000, and 90 per cent. of its citizens are reliant upon its main industry. The community boasts of its own Chamber of Commerce, twenty churches, several of America's largest theatres—and no pawnshops.

WHISTLER FILM.

Preparations are well to the fore at the Universal Studios for a production called "My Mother," to be made around the famous painting of his mother by the artist Whistler.

The whole life and story of the creator of the great masterpiece are to be included in the script.

Whistler, an American, came to Europe in 1857, and from then until his death in 1903 he made a great name for himself as an etcher in both Paris and London. When he first exhibited paintings in oils he greatly puzzled the critics. Ruskin described one of his "nocturnes" as "a pot of paint flung in the public face," and for this criticism Whistler brought an action for libel, but was only awarded one farthing damages without costs.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW.

No fewer than forty-four films were scheduled to be screened at the International Cinematographic Exposition to be held in Venice during August.

Britain is represented by five entries—A Gerson short, "Contact," "Blossom Time," "The Private Life of Don Juan," and "Man of Aran."

America will be represented by "The Invisible Man," "It Happened One Night," "Little Women," "Death Takes a Holiday," "White Heat," "Wonder Bar," "Mystery

FASHION NOTES

The evening silhouette is still cast in the long, slim mould that is the ideal of 1934, but somehow it seems better fitted than formerly.

The plain, bias-cut dresses that had only the smallest of variable details, have given way to dresses which have pleats, ruffles, floating panels, big sashes, wings, and many different kinds of individual departures from the straight and narrow line. Flowers play a prominent part in the mode, and feathers add to the frivolous atmosphere. Capes, made entirely of ostrich feathers, swirl about evening dresses. Some are even quite long, and smother the wearer from chin to knee.

For some reason or other, ostrich feathers are used in Paris with the most extraordinary materials. One loose coat seen the other day and worn by a well-known Parisienne, was in coarse blue linen trimmed with blue ostrich feather flues, and topped a black taffetas frock.

TRIAL ENGAGEMENT?

Miss Merle Oberon, the British film actress, who has now announced that she is engaged to marry Mr. Joseph Schenck, the American film magnate, left Nice for London. Mr. Schenck also left Nice, but he is going to America.

"I am coming back to Europe in a month's time," he said, "and I hope that my wedding with Miss Oberon will take place in England soon after that."

According to another report the engagement is a "trial one." Mr. Schenck said: "I love the girl and she loves me, so we have decided on a trial engagement. I naturally don't want my wife to go on with film work after marriage, but she won't abandon her career."

BABY'S BED

Aids To Restful Sleep

By Olive Roberts Barton

I don't wonder that some children hate to go to bed in hot weather.

If you've seen what I've seen here and there, in the way of beds and bedding for babies and little children, you wouldn't wonder about their dislike.

You know that hot feel even of a smooth sheet over a firm mattress when you touch the bed on a hot night. You are sure that there must be a stove under it with a special burner where your torso touches.

How would we feel if we had a mattress that sagged like a hammock in the middle, and over it a pad and a rubber sheet, perhaps another pad for good measure and then a rumpled sheet over that, holding impenetrable heat waves in every fold? A strong smell of ammonia added won't help any.

KEEP BED SMOOTH, ODOURLESS.

Put this bed over in a corner somewhere, let some one close the door and leave us to our misery.

Would we yell? No, we would feel like hunting up a weapon and going out for honest prey. We certainly would vault over those high sides (perhaps the winter shields are still on) and get out of that place so we could live.

A baby's or child's bed should be flat, smooth and wrinkleless and without any odour of urine.

There should be a bit of rubber sheeting drawn tight over the mattress (rinsed and sunned each day) but it should not extend up under the head. It causes head sweating.

If baby has a pillow of "feathers" take it away. Use a piece of something (not wool) folded flat and covered by a cool slip. Pillows are seldom used for babies, but if he has the habit, break him in to a very flat cool one.

FLOOR SLEEPING ADVISABLE.

Now pull his bed away from the corner, out where the night breeze, if any, can circulate freely.

Of course, this is taking it for granted that any change in weather is not going to catch any one napping, or that the house is not on a mountain top where nights mean blankets and coziness.

Beds need to be made flat, sheets pulled tight, pillow slips smooth, and a whole general appearance of neatness should pervade.

In the daytime the baby doesn't need a pillow to sit on in his perambulator. Fold something (not woolly) under him flat. A bit of hardness is good for a baby anyway.

"Can I sleep on the floor, Mummy?" asks small Charles.

Don't get that "impossible" look in your eyes, mother. Why not? A clean sheet, a flat cool floor—well, you know best, but I know what I'd take if my bed was a hot-box of discomfort and the mercury was grinning from the top of the tube.

We are trying out the engagement for that reason.

FRIENDS FALL OUT

FRANCO-POLISH QUARREL

PARIS' SEVEN DEADLY SINS

There is no longer any doubt that considerable tension has developed between France and Poland.

Opinion here is inclined to attribute it to seven deadly sins alleged to have been committed by France against her ally.

First Locarno. That treaty was the first bitter drop in the wine of Franco-Polish friendship.

As much as those of France, the frontiers of Poland needed protection, possibly more then than at any other time. The German agitation for the return of the Polish Corridor was in full blast, but France put her own interests first.

Next the Four-Power Pact. Here, again, France concluded a pact with others and left her ally out.

The gulf has been widened further by the concessions made by French Governments to Germany.

ECONOMIC BUILDERS.

The fourth on the list of France's "deadly sins" is to be found in the trade and economic relations of the two allies. Unlike the French General, the French business man cares little for Poland. The result has been that Poland has found no outlet for her goods in France. To-day she is more dependent on England, which buys almost a fourth of her agricultural exports, than on France, which takes almost nothing.

France, who wanted a strong Poland, has, so it is said, done nothing to make her ally strong and prosperous. This blunder has been accentuated by France's fifth sin. French capital has avoided Poland for the most part, and, for the rest, has treated Poland as a French colony.

FRENCH FIRM FINED.

Some years ago the biggest mills in Poland—the Zyrardow concern, which employs seven or eight thousand hands—was acquired by M. Marcel Boussac, the French cotton king. He is believed to have made a great fortune out of it.

Two of the French directors were arrested last month on charges of fraud upon the State and the Polish workers, and the firm was fined £400,000 for evasion of stamp tax.

Next comes the problem of the Polish workers in France. About 600,000 Poles have been engaged in France as miners and agricultural labourers. Their treatment has been regarded in Warsaw as unfair. Now, with the increase of the depression in France, thousands are being sent out without compensation.

Another batch of 91 Polish miners and their wives and families were expelled.

On the top of all this comes the French project for an Eastern Locarno Pact.

Poland, having always looked askance at French flirtation with Russia, will not willingly allow herself to be elbowed out of her position as first ally of France. She says it must be "We, or They."

ST. ANDREW'S WEDDING

CHARMING BRIDE FROM CANADA

The wedding of Miss Jessie Elizabeth MacPhail of Vancouver, B.C., and Mr. Kenneth Frederic Noble, Hongkong, was solemnized on Saturday at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon.

Mrs. Noble, a charming bride, wore a gown of white lace with a short train, a finger-tip jacket and hat and gloves of lace to match. She carried a shower bouquet of white glimmer lilies.

Miss Margaret Brewster acted as bridesmaid, in a pale blue fitted gown with long sleeves and brimmed felt hat to match, and Mrs. Florence Muzzall, as matron-of-honour, was gowned in green flowered chiffon, black velvet hat and accessories. Miss Brewster's bouquet was of pink gladioli and Mrs. Muzzall's of yellow gladioli.

Major V. E. Duclos, just returned from leave, gave the bride away and Mr. A. C. Ellis was best man. The Rev. J. R. Higgs officiated at the ceremony.

The bride's going-away ensemble was of white linen, suit and hat to match, and a white corage.

A reception was held at the Peninsula Hotel Roof Garden and the happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Repulse Bay.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Katherine MacPhail, Vancouver, B.C., and Mr. Noble's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Noble, also reside in that city.

DANGER IN WAR TROPHIES

THREE EXPLOSIONS IN A YEAR

Particular attention is drawn to accidents caused by leaving about and tampering with surplus explosives, including war trophies, in the annual report, issued recently, of I.M. Inspectors of Explosives. They report three accidents occurring with Mills bombs, and say: "Should there be any doubt as to the safety of war trophies, they should, without delay, be handed to the police, who will make the necessary arrangements for their disposal."

"The fact that a detonator has been removed from a Mills bomb does not render it safe."

Attention is also called to the number of accidents during the refuelling of motor vehicles. These generally occur through

BOOKMAKERS IN ELECTION

Council Protest to Home Secretary

Odds up to 100 to 1 were offered by a bookmaker against certain candidates topping the polling when Cottingham (Yorkshire) was last elected members of its Council.

The Urban District Council did not like this new feature in their election, and afterwards passed a resolution, protesting about it. Their M.P., Mr. S. Savory, brought the protest to the attention of the Home Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour has now written to him about it. The letter states:

"I have, as I promised, looked into the legal aspect of the matter,

ROYAL NAVY'S HANDKERCHIEFS

ADMIRALTY ORDERS NEW PATTERN

The existing square pattern silk handkerchief for ratings dressed as seamen will be replaced by an oblong pattern, states Admiralty Fleet Orders.

For use, it is stated the ends should be stitched together in such a position as to form a loop of suitable length for the wearer, and the silk then folded in the usual way.

It is anticipated that the new shape will be found more convenient than the old, and will provide more alternative positions in wear.

The black silk handkerchief worn by seamen as a scarf is popularly supposed to have originated as mourning for Nelson, but this part

PREPAREDNESS IN THE AIR

AMERICAN ADVICE TO BRITAIN

INVESTIGATING IN EUROPE

"England's prime consideration should be its air force—military, naval, and civil. Indeed, all European countries must be prepared for immediate and intensive action in the air in the event of an outbreak of war."

This is considered opinion of the Hon. Clark Howell, chairman of the United States Federal Aviation Commission.

Mr. Howell arrived recently from Paris by air. To meet high officials of the Air Ministry, following an invitation by the British Government to study military and civil aviation in England.

He was called to Washington by President Roosevelt on July 28, and on August 2 sailed for Europe to study administrative conditions in military and civil aviation.

U.S. WARPLANES.

On the report of the commission of which he is chairman depends whether the United States Government will establish an Air Ministry on the lines adopted in England. At present the United States War and Navy Departments independently control their respective air forces.

"The United States has 1,800 warplanes," said Mr. Howell. "We are immediately increasing our force to 2,000, and in the case of need we could raise it to 5,000 machines within three months."

"President Roosevelt means to stabilise the aeroplane industry in the United States and put the industry on a proper basis in relation to the Government."

"He has in mind that during the last ten years there have been no fewer than 15 investigations by committees, boards, or commissions into the various phases of aviation in our country. Every session of Congress and Senate has had the matter under consideration in various ways, and now the President is determined to get the question stabilised."

INTENSE INVESTIGATION.

"I am deeply impressed with the administrative system in France and Italy."

"The fact that all countries are studying aviation to the fullest degree was demonstrated to me when I arrived in Italy. In that country now there are commissions appointed by no fewer than four countries, including China and all are studying aviation conditions."

"In Naples I met members of commissions from Russia, Brazil, and China. A Russian general, at the head of his country's commission, told me that his Government is paying the very greatest attention to aviation, and considers it to be of paramount importance. Russia places aviation before everything."

"So intense is the investigation that I have no hesitation in saying that within a short time Transatlantic flights will be a commercial proposition. There will be flying-boat services all the year round."

ITALIAN AIR SERVICES.

Speaking of his conversations with high Government officials in Italy, Mr. Howell mentioned that in addition to the subsidy which Italy now has from South Africa in respect of a fast shipping service, negotiations are proceeding between the Italian and South African Governments with a view to obtaining a subsidy for an air line which will link interior points in Africa with ports in South Africa.

"It may also mean," said Mr. Howell, "that an express air line service between Italy and South Africa will come into operation, subsidised by the South African Government."

Mr. Howell paid a great tribute to England's civil air lines, and was much impressed with his trip from Paris in the Imperial Airways' liner Hercules.

"It is five years since I was in Europe," he said, "and even in those days, one considers a day must be set apart for a trip from France to England. Yet, just three hours ago, I was in Paris. I had a splendid trip, with all the facilities one could get in the world's greatest sea liner."

The United States Aviation Commission met in Washington on September 15, and among the experts who will give evidence will be Col. Lindbergh.

Even the horses of the military escort seemed to sense the tragedy of President Paul von Hindenburg's death, for they too stood with bowed heads as the flag-draped casket was borne into the memorial at Tannenberg, Germany, for the impressive funeral services. In the background troops of cavalry present sabres while foot companies behind stand at attention.

petrol falling on to hot exhaust pipes, or through motor cyclists not extinguishing their acetylene lamps.

"The practice of remaining seated on a motor-cycle while the tank is being filled," says the report, "is clearly dangerous to the cyclist, but when in addition he lights a cigarette it is not surprising that serious accidents occur."

SPARKS FROM SILK.

Dry cleaning at home seems to be a danger, and the inspectors call attention to the serious risks involved when using any but the smallest amounts of petrol for this and similar purposes.

The risks arise mainly from the fact that electric sparks can be obtained by rubbing fabrics, especially silks, in the hands.

Further, owing to the heaviness of petrol vapour there may be a "flow" of inflammable vapour to a considerable distance, for instance, under a door to a fire in another room.

and I am advised that if it could be proved that a bookmaker was offering high odds against a particular candidate, or group of candidates, in an election, for the purpose of inducing people to vote, or of influencing votes in the hope of winning money by their election, it would constitute bribery and a corrupt practice which could be dealt with under the existing law.

"Obviously, however, the offence is not one which would be easy to prove."

"SPECIAL LEGISLATION."

"So far as I am aware, Cottingham is the only case in recent years where professional bookmakers have been active in connection with elections."

"I agree that these practices are most undesirable, and if they became extensive it might be necessary to introduce special legislation to deal with them."

"You may be assured that I will bear these circumstances in mind."

of Naval uniform is much older than that.

Pictures in the Royal United Service Museum, Whitehall, show seamen of the early Eighteenth Century wearing black scarves, although coloured ones were then fairly common.

Commander W. N. T. Beckett, in his book on Naval customs, writes:

"Chronicles tell us that it (the handkerchief) was worn in action either round the head to prevent the sweat running into a man's eyes; round the waist; or as a pad for his knee in case he was one of the handsplike numbers at the heavy guns. When ashore, its colour varied according to individual taste."

The Home Secretary adds that the matter could not properly be dealt with by way of amendment to the Betting and Lotteries Bill before Parliament.

"The cycle-racers' nightmare, and the greatest danger of such contests. Here is the beginning of the race."

For nearly a month, and no publication has been authorized in connection with his activities there. The Foreign Office here, however, admits that these are of a "confidential character."

One fact stands out crystal clear in the Santiago press. The Chileans are obsessed with their "more trade" complex and are determined to use diplomacy and every other legitimate means to push their commercial relations with Pacific neighbours who are ready to reciprocate.

Bolivia offers considerable scope to Chilean capitalists and exporters, while the recent slump in tin has increased the freight business on the northern railroads that pass through Chilean territory. Trade with Paraguay is nonexistent.

MEXICAN WIFE'S ADMISSION

Remanded from yesterday on a charge of soliciting for immoral purposes, in Gascoigne Road near Chi Wo Street, on the night of September 17, Ng Wing, 48 years of age, unemployed, of 278, Ki Lung Street, ground floor, was sentenced to three months' hard labour, by Mr. E. L. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Sub-Inspector W. Hynes, appearing for the prosecution, stated that on the night of September 17, Ng Wing was walking in the company of a woman, in Gascoigne Road near Chi Wo Street, and on seeing him said "Hullo," and asked him a certain question, whereupon Sub-Inspector Hynes arrested him.

A Mexican woman, who said that she was the wife of Ng Wing, the defendant, was produced in Court as witness. Through a Spanish interpreter who had specially been called, she gave her name as Mrs. Refugio Nevarez, 34 years of age, and said that she was married to defendant in Mexico in 1931. They had one child, a boy, who was 13 years old. The marriage, she stated, had been a civil marriage and did not take place in a church. Witness then stated that she had asked defendant to approach Sub-Inspector Hynes.

MORE MUI-TSAI CASES

ABOUT 700 GIRLS NOT TRACED

Leung Wah, 24 years, a clerk, residing at No. 74 Hennessy Road, first floor, was convicted by Mr. V. M. Thomson, on a summons for having kept an unregistered mui-tai, Chong Hang, alias Kwai Fa, aged 14 years, and was fined $50.

Sub-Inspector Fraser, of the S. C. A., said the girl came to his office on August 31 and said she was an unregistered mui-tai in the employ of the defendant. She also complained of having been beaten with a feather duster. There was a faint mark on her mouth, and marks on her right forearm and right leg, but the medical officer, who had examined her, was of opinion that the beating did not amount to cruelty. The girl was presented by her mother for $130 (Canton currency) to defendant's mother, who presented her to defendant as part of his marriage dowry. No wages had been paid her.

Defendant stated that he was under the impression that the girl was not a mui-tai and that it was not necessary to register her.

Another summons for failing to report the change of address of a registered mui-tai against Wong Ho-ye, a widow, residing at No. 55 Bonham Road, first floor, was dealt with by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, who imposed a fine of $10.

Inspector Fraser said the girl was treated as a member of the family, and was last seen by an Inspector on March 12, 1932. She was one of about 700 girls they had been unable to locate.

If you've guessed all the entrants in the contest so far, here's one that will stick you yet! The photographer (careless fellow!) did an especially bad job on this picture. It looks all black, doesn't it? But never you mind, you can tell who it is, can't you? That's right—the kid himself!

And now that you know who it is, what about those five adjectives? Can you get those down in a jiffy? Remember, there have been three pictures published before this one, and to-morrow completes the contest. At the end of the fifth day, send all your material identifications and five adjectives in reference to each of the stars shown, to the Management, Alhambra Theatre.

To the ten persons who get the right names and the most appropriate descriptive words will be awarded two tickets each.

All the stars who are being portrayed in this contest are featured in "Wonder Bar," the new big musical hit coming to the Strand on Monday. And if you missed the first issues of the contest, you can obtain copies of the papers by calling at the office of the "Telegraph."

To-morrow is the last day of the contest! Don't give in now—stick with it, and perhaps you'll be one of the lucky prize-winners. And even if you aren't, it's a lot of fun, isn't it?

Remember, "Wonder Bar," is the First National hit adapted from the musical drama which played for more than five years in the leading cities of the United States and Europe. The film version stars Kay Francis, Dick Powell, Al Jolson, Ricardo Cortez, Dolores Del Rio, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, and many others.

NOT DISCOURAGED. Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt said he was not discouraged by his defeat. He knew the Endeavour was very fast, he said.

The New York Yacht Club has granted permission for the removal of a portion of the Endeavour's cabin fittings in order to bring them down to the weight of the Rainbow's.

Mr. Sopwith says that only a small amount will be removed. "We will still carry more than the Rainbow," he said, but he did not intend to take out any more anyway.

The explanation of this decision lies in the fact that before the race, experts expressed the opinion that the Rainbow's cabin fittings did not accord with the rules of the contest. Briefly, in non-expert language, the Endeavour's cabin fittings are far more comfortable than the Rainbow's, but it appears that the rules have been differently interpreted.—Reuter.

RUSSIA'S ELECTION.

Geneva, Sept. 18. Russia to-day became a member of the League of Nations, despite the protests of the anti-Soviet bloc of smaller nations, with only three votes actually cast against her in the Assembly.

Thirty-nine nations supported the admission of the Soviet and three abstained from voting.

Immediately after her election to membership, the Assembly voted the Soviet a permanent seat on the League of Nations Council. There were no dissenting votes, but the same ten still refrained from participation.

The League President, M. Richard Sandler of Sweden, in a speech of welcome, said the presence of the Soviet delegation at Geneva proved that the tendency of the states is to work towards universality, despite the differences of race, language, religion and political systems, and towards world harmony, with the distant ideal of united humanity.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGEMARKET FIRMER
YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: Stocks firmed up, due to the improvement in steel production, but at the close most issues were receding from the day's high levels, owing to the generally pessimistic atmosphere. Bonds were irregularly higher, featured by the firmness of United States Government issues. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were upward. Wheat prices were downward, due to reports of favourable weather conditions in the Argentine.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: The stock market developed a moderately firm tone as the Security Exchange Commission announces a conservative regulation programme. There is no outstanding news. Automobile production totalled 42,000 cars and trucks during the week ended September 13th. Business failures for the week ended September 12th totalled 199, against 174 last week and 275 failures during the corresponding period of last year, 530,000.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: Cotton: Favourable crop and weather reports, poor exports, a slack domestic market and political and financial uncertainty are preventing outside participation, which is necessary for any sustained advance. There is continued agitation for the repeal of the Bankhead Act.

Grain: Fears of imports of wheat; copious rains in the South-west and general apathy on the part of traders caused a narrow market. The tone was steady to-day and the cash position remained strong.

Rubber: The market is dull and featureless.

Sugar: The market ruled quiet, but barely steady, awaiting developments.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 19, 1934.

NEEDLESS OFFENCE

A lot of needless pother has been raised in connection with the admission of Russia to the League of Nations. At a time when the League's stock has fallen somewhat low by the withdrawal of Japan and Germany, it might have been thought that the willingness of another Great Power to enter the League, and thereby pledge its adherence to the principles for which it stands, would have been unanimously welcomed. Instead of that, however, we find several of the smaller States indulging in attacks on the Soviet which are not only out of place but which display an ill-grace which cannot but be regretted. Even Belgium, which abstained from voting, was compelled to concede that Russia's entry would enlarge the League's sphere of influence. It is a pity that this consideration did not prove sufficiently weighty to turn the scales in favour of a positive Belgian vote in the Soviet's favour, or induce the opponents of admission to pause before offering a gratuitous affront to the new member. In the main, the objections raised to Russia's entry have been based on the Soviet's political and economic principles. These, however, are in reality no concern of the League. Every country has a right to its own ideas under these heads. Indeed, there is already an amazing variety of political and economic concepts represented by the members of the League. Uniformity on these matters is not possible, even if it is desirable. Representatives of democracies and dictatorships sit side by side at the League deliberations, so that the addition of a new member with a distinctive outlook on world politics and economics need not raise undue fears for the future. The Soviet's subversive past propaganda in foreign countries, without question aimed at the existing order of things, may cause some qualms, but Russia well knows that, as a member of the League, her actions will be closely scrutinised, and she may well be disposed to walk more circumspectly in the future. In any event, she must be fully conscious of the obligations which membership of the League implies. One decided

NOTES OF THE DAY

TALKING TO EUROPE

By next summer Hongkong will be able to converse by radio telephone with points in Europe. That is to say, anyone who is anxious to speak to London or Paris or Berlin may do so at a cost of $4 or $5 for three minutes. The system will consist of a Hongkong hook-up with Canton, a relay from Canton through Shanghai, and thence to the station one is calling. One of those indices of progress and modernisation which from time to time crop up in the East, is this radio telephone link promised by a Telephone Administration official from Canton. While the Hongkong Telephone Company is not known to be actively interested in the project, it is probable that the scheme will have its enthusiastic co-operation. Anything which may bring this great commercial centre of the East into more direct communication with the business of the West must serve a useful purpose.

SPEEDIER MAILS

There is reason to believe that the time is near for the welding of still another link between Hongkong and Europe: the institution of an air mail, and possibly a passenger, service. When Imperial Airways completes its London-Singapore-Australia service, it is hoped that a branch of the sky-way will be thrown north to Hongkong. This, probably more than a radio telephone system, would bring the Colony closer to Home centres and to another valuable trade area in New Zealand and Australia.

KEEPING IN STEP

While these developments are somewhat remote and, to the man in the street, of no particular significance, they are assuredly of interest to those who appreciate that a port such as Hongkong cannot afford to lag behind competitors. Obviously anything which will procure for Hongkong more rapid communication with her customers must serve a useful purpose. Britain is generally quick to grasp a commercial opportunity and is spending large sums to provide a rapid air service to her Dominions, to Australia, and to Canada. Imperial Airways planes are already maintaining a splendid schedule to India, Egypt and Africa. The time is not far distant when even the remotest corner of the Empire will be within a few days, or hours, of London. When that time comes for Hongkong she can congratulate herself that she is in step with the times.

SIGNS OF REVIVAL

While the signs of a revival of trade are not yet easy to find in this Colony, there are definite indications in other parts of the Empire that an era of greater prosperity has arrived. In Australia, Premier Lyons recently discovered that instead of a deficit of approximately £2,000,000 he was going to have a surplus of almost that amount. Unemployment had decreased 10 per cent, credit had been restored, taxation was decreased, and so on. In Canada the annual trade figures jumped about £30,000,000, half of the advance being in inter-Imperial commerce. These, and the even more encouraging figures from Britain, are a fairly accurate barometer of British business. Hongkong, it is probable, will presently feel the quickening of enterprise.

CAUSE FOR TROUBLE

In New York there is a gentleman who has made millions out of strikes. For years he has been supplying big industrialists with strike-breakers, and the business has been a profitable one. And while the present era has put a lot of business his way, he does not like the signs and portents. "I've been in this business a long time," he says, "I'm no chicken. I've made millions breaking strikes in this country. There's plenty of trouble ahead. . . . We're going to be lucky if we save this country from a revolution." It is probable that he is taking an unduly pessimistic view of the situation. But it might be added that if the workers of America ever do get into a revolutionary mood, one of the prime causes will be the activities of men who make a business of supplying professional thugs to act as strike-breakers, guards and strong-arm men in industrial disputes.

gain arising from the Soviet's presence at the League deliberations will be her realistic attitude on the disarmament question and her logical approach to the question of defining aggressive conduct. On these issues, Russia has much that is worth while to contribute to the pool of international thought. Striking a balance, there can be no question of the desirability and wisdom of Russia's admission to the League. The only cause for regret is that the invitation has not been unanimous.

PEACE WORKERS' TASK IN GRAN CHACO

Chile's diplomatic dispute with Paraguay is another challenge to Pan-American peace promoters, according to opinion in the South American capitals. It is held to emphasize the dangers to continental concord if America—using the term in the New World sense—is unable to bring the Chaco warring parties to negotiation or arbitration.

There is no one in the South American chancelleries who would seriously suggest that this country could be drawn into the Chaco jungle war, but there is an almost unanimous fear that the Pacific and Atlantic neighbours of the belligerent powers may be split into opposite camps, one group backing up Paraguay and the other Bolivia and all forgetting their common Pan-American obligation to concentrate on the localisation and termination of the present conflict.

There is much superficial evidence to support the allegations of scaremongers that Chile has been backing up the Bolivian cause but the bulk of it arises from geographical contiguity and a natural desire to see the La Paz Government obtain an outlet via the Atlantic which would dissipate Chilean anxiety regarding its own paramount position on the Pacific coast.

It always has to be remembered that part of what is now the northern Chilean seaboard used to be Bolivian territory. It was conquered by Chile in the Pacific war of 1879 and confirmed in its possession by the Antofagasta treaty of 1904. Since that time, until oil forced it to look toward the Atlantic, Bolivia entertained ideas of revindication—which was a continual embarrassment for the Chilean administration. Even up to the time of the Tacna-Arica settlement between Chile and Peru, Bolivia had hopes that the original American proposal of a buffer coastal strip for it would be accepted.

When Chile and Peru settled their own differences without taking Bolivia into account, La Paz decided that it must concentrate on an outlet via the Atlantic. It was encouraged farther in this policy by the fact that the newly-developed oil must naturally be piped the same way.

But, in looking toward the Atlantic, Bolivia comes into conflict with Argentina as well as Paraguayan policy. The definite threat to Paraguay inevitably led to war; but, to all appearances, Argentina is equally determined to arrest Bolivian progress. It has been alleged, though never definitely proved that the Buenos Aires Government has facilitated Paraguayan resistance to Bolivian designs.

It is natural, therefore, that with Argentine and Chile separately sympathetic to two different solutions to landlocked Bolivia's international problem there should be some diplomatic fears that Santiago and Buenos Aires may be jockeyed into opposing camps. Fortunately, the two countries never have been on such friendly terms as to-day, and the almost remarkable fact is witnessed of Argentine taking charge of Chilean affairs in Asuncion while Minister Gallardo Nieto is on "vacation."

An impartial survey of the editorial opinions of the Argentine and Chilean press demonstrates a unanimous desire of the two nations to remain cool and dispassionate. Indeed, as La Nacion points out, the incident between Asuncion and Santiago has served as a fresh challenge to the two nations, Chile and Argentina, in company with Brazil, to initiate a new effort to bring Paraguay and Bolivia to peace. Foreign Ministers Saavedra Lamas and Miguel Crujeira, in their cordial consultations, have proved that if there has been an attempt to sow dissension the seed has fallen on stony ground.

Chileans, as a whole, take the diplomatic quarrel seriously. Considering that this is the proudest and most patriotic state in all South America, there is a surprising absence of rancour in the references to the Paraguayan attitude.

The press takes it for granted that normality will be restored soon in the relations of the two countries, and refers to the numerous offers by other powers of their good offices. The United States, Argentina and Uruguay offered their assistance directly the dispute became public.

To appease Paraguayan feeling the Government here on Aug. 8 gave orders to tighten up Bolivian frontier control to avoid the smuggling of Chilean labour to the Altiplano, and issued a statement to the effect that the recently passed legislation prohibiting Chileans to enlist in foreign armies would be strictly enforced. It added that there would be no leniency for offenders, who are liable to many penalties, including loss of pension and civic rights. Provincial authorities were ordered to forbid the contracting of Chilean labour for Bolivian mines.

Unofficially, there is much speculation regarding the transformation of Chile's diplomatic position vis a vis Bolivia. A decade ago there were few Chileans who foresaw the time when this country would be described as "very friendly" with Bolivia, long regarded as an enemy, and not on speaking terms with Paraguay, an historic and longstanding friend.

Yet it cannot be denied that Chile's relations with Bolivia have vastly improved of late, due doubtless to the new economic policy of winning markets on the Pacific seaboard to compensate for the loss of non-American foreign trade. Much Chilean mining capital is invested in the inland republic and remunerative services are rendered there in a variety of commercial ways.

But the Government and press insist that there has been no departure from neutrality. Paraguayan suspicions are described as the price Chile has to pay for geographical contiguity to Bolivia. Apart from the diplomatic dispute there is considerable domestic speculation regarding the Bolivian mission conducted by Senor Benjamin Cohen for the Chilean Government. Senor Cohen, who is well known in Washington where he acted as Charge d'Affaires for considerable period, has been in La

The Very Idea!

AUNT EMMA SCANS
THE NEWS.

DEAR GEORGE, I am shocked to read of the tiger that is terrorising Kwangtung and should be glad to know if there is any danger of a resurrection of the New Territories tiger.

Although I believe the animal was thoroughly and conscientiously killed some centuries ago it would seem that it must have had a mate and that we have been nursing a viper in our bosom.

Anyway I trust the police will be able to deal with this and any Green Island monster after the practice they have had of shooting rabid dogs.

It is good news to us on the Peak that an Amusement Park is being planned. Things are frightfully dull up here and really we should love to relax sometimes.

There is many a taipan who has only his cigar and boy for company who would become natural again on a sea-saw or a Ferris wheel. And if he lost his typist on the roundabout he could make up on the swings.

Now let's have a drop of drink with the great Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, the man with a sail, who will show for a snail, the junk of the Vanderbilt kith.

The caddis! Just because golfers would not accede to their demand for higher wages, Chicago caddies romped in nudist clothes over the golf course, putting men off their stroke and taking lady players' eyes off the ball.

It is stated however that applications for membership to the club have increased.

One dreads to think what would happen if a revolt broke out among the nudist party and they appeared in public in ordinary clothes.

There would certainly be much resentment on the part of the public at the disappearance of one of their pet scapegoats.

Which reminds me that it is time for bed and I must get out my nude nighties.

Your faithful,
Aunt Emma.

GERMANY'S BIG ARMS PURCHASES

BREACH OF TREATY BY U.S. ALLEGED

HUNDRED PLANES A MONTH

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic News
2024, Cincinnati, 1934. Received, September
19, 1934, 10.00 a.m.)

Washington, Sept. 18.

Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate Committee on munition manufacture investigation, said that he had obtained evidence that the United Aircraft Company last April had six agents soliciting business in Germany. The company's business grew from $6,000 to $1,445,000 during the first eight months of 1934, he added.

Senator Nye went on to say that it was gossip among American aeroplane manufacturers that Germany was commissioning a hundred machines a month and would have 2,000 military planes by the end of the year.

Mr. C. W. Deeds, Treasurer of the Pratt, Whitney Company, said he had not heard this gossip but testified that engines from his firm sold to Germany could be synchronized for firing of machine-guns through their propellers. It had been reported, he said, that the State Department had warned American munition manufacturers that their German sales campaigns were contrary to the Versailles Treaty. —United Press.

FOREIGN SUBSIDIES FOR GERMAN PLANES.

Washington, Sept. 18. Further sensational reports regarding Germany's acquisition of aircraft, were read at the continuation of the Arms Inquiry to-day. One was that Germany was using foreign funds to subsidize her own aircraft manufacturers.

Other evidence purported to show that on August 5, 1933, the State Department at Washington took cognizance of the sale of American aeroplanes to Germany and warned the exporters that the United States Government was opposed to such trade. —Reuter.

ILLEGAL "STILL"

MAN SENTENCED ON THREE COUNTS

Li Kan, 30 years of age, and Li Yan, 27 years of age, both unemployed, appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, charged with, (a) distilling Chinese spirits, at 6, Wong Chuk Street, second floor, without a licence, (b) possession of apparatus for distilling spirits, and (c) possession of fermenting material without a licence.

The second defendant, Li Yan, pleaded that he was only a visitor and had nothing to do with the business. Revenue Officer W. G. Humphreys stated that at the time of the raid on the flat, Li Yan was sleeping on the roof. He was discharged.

Li Kan, the first defendant, pleaded guilty to all three charges, and was fined $500 with the alternative of six months' hard labour on the first charge, $250 or two months on the second, and $100 or one month on the third, the sentences to run concurrently. His Worship also ordered the confiscation of the spirits and apparatus.

MURDER PROVOKED

he says his daughter stayed there at that village until she was 18? Witness: I never saw her. And you were there all that time and never saw her?—Yes. Was accused ever married before?—No. It is said that he has a fat wife in the country?—It is not true.

Mr. Frazer said he would agree that such a ceremony as that described above would constitute a legal marriage.

POINTS FOR JURY.

The jury then left the Court whilst His Lordship put to the defending counsel the points on which he would require enlargement before putting his charge to the jury. His Lordship said: Assuming that the jury disbelieve the last witness, then may I hear you as to whether there is any evidence of marriage; and secondly, if they believe that accused and deceased were husband and wife, is there any evidence that the provocation which was present was grave and sudden?

Mr. Lo said the couple had lived together for a considerable time and had had two children, and it was the discovery of adultery which gave provocation to the accused.

If accused had ocular evidence of the adultery, he submitted that the charge should be reduced to manslaughter. Accused went to the floor to confirm his suspicions, gaining access by means of the rope. The knife he may have taken with him to open a window or perhaps to be used in self-defence.

The jury were recalled and Mr. Lo made his final address.

After repeating his submission that the charge should be reduced to manslaughter if adultery could be proved and the fact of the marriage between Keung Wal-in and accused was established, Mr. Hin-shing Lo went over the evidence of the alleged marriage.

LEGAL MARRIAGE.

He submitted that the brother's evidence as to the ceremony had not been shaken and their living together afterwards was evidence of their legal marriage.

When accused returned from Canton and learnt that his wife was staying with Yim Chun, he tried to see them several times and then determined to go at night and find for himself on what terms of intimacy they were. The fact that he went at night-time taking a rope and knife with him could be used to allege that he went with malice, but it was also consistent with the theory that he went to get confirmation.

The manner in which accused made his escape also fell into line with the suggestion he (counsel) wished to make—that when he actually saw the pair naked together in the cubicle, he lost control of himself and stabbed the woman to death.

Following a remark by Counsel as to reducing the offence, his Lordship interjected: Surely there is a presumption that all unlawful homicide is murder, and it is for you to satisfy the jury that there are circumstances existing which justify the reduction of the offence from murder to manslaughter.

NO INTENT TO KILL.

Mr. Lo said he would suggest that accused did not go to the flat with any intention of killing but that he lost control of himself.

The Assistant Attorney General said he would confine himself to answering the points raised by counsel for the defence.

The Crown had strongly challenged the evidence of the brother who had spoken of the marriage.

The evidence of Yim Hei as to the visits accused made to the flat was corroborated by accused himself. If he lost control as was suggested, he certainly regained control very quickly as was witnessed by the excuse he made when accosted by the policeman shortly after the killing.

If the jury agreed that the union between accused and the woman was unlawful, he would feel justified in his cross-examination of Pastor Lee Kau-yun.

Excluding the brother's evidence, there were only the statements of accused himself that he was married to Keung Wal-in and against this there was the evidence of the father who said his daughter was married to Yim Chun and produced a photograph of them together.

ONLY JUSTIFICATION.

The only justification for reducing the offence of murder to manslaughter in such a case was if accused found the woman, who must be his wife, in flagrante delicto and yielded to the killing without meditation.

But in this case the knife and rope, the entrance at night and the arrangements for flight, had to be explained. If he had merely sought ocular confirmation of his suspicions he could have seen through the window.

A remarkably fine picture of the Endeavour taken during her trials in America just before her races for the America's Cup. She has won two contests in the series and needs only two more to win back the trophy.

LOCAL FIRMS FINED

IMPORT RETURNS LACKING

Four more business firms were summoned before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for failure to furnish the Import and Export Declaration within seven days after taking delivery of goods. In all cases fines of $25 were imposed. The Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha firm, No. 14 Pedder Street, were summoned in respect of 8,484 tons of coal which arrived in the Colony on the steamer Mikage Maru on August 1 from Sakito.

The Kin Cheong firm, No. 14 Queen's Street, were summoned in respect of 70 bales of raw silk imported on the steamer Sai On on August 1 from Canton.

Sze Wal & Company, No. 42 Bonham Strand, West, were summoned in respect of 700 tons of coal imported on the steamer Kamona on August 1; and S. Kato & Company, No. 16-17 Queen's Road Central, was summoned in respect of 344 cases of rayon yarn imported on the steamer Nagato Maru on August 1.

There was nothing more than irresistible impulse—which was not provocation.

In one statement accused had said that Yim Chun had taken not only his wife but his furniture. He showed that he was willing to accept compensation for the furniture—and for the wife. He wanted his $30 marriage money back, and yet he says that when he became aware of the adultery he was overcome.

Despite the sympathy which the jury would feel for any cogent reason advanced by the defence, they should in this case find him guilty of the murder with which he was charged.

Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with the theft of two sets of towel rails and standards from the War Memorial Nursing Home. Mr. H. R. Forsyth was the complainant. An additional charge of receiving was also preferred. Sergeant Harris asked for a remand, saying that there had been a number of thefts of rails, and stock was being taken. Defendant was accordingly remanded until to-morrow in police custody.

$35,000 WORTH OF OPIUM

FOUND HIDDEN IN COW HIDES

The seizure of a large quantity of raw opium, 17,400 taels, valued at $35,000, was made by Revenue Officer W. A. Grimmer, when a raid was conducted on No. 3 Heard Street on the morning of September 13.

The opium was found concealed in 303 cow hides. There were 67 bales of such hides on the premises, which was rented as a godown.

The keeper of the godown, Wong Tak, was charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with possession of the opium, and was fined $5,000, or in default twelve months' hard labour. Defendant stated that a friend had introduced him as a godown keeper, and he was given the job. He could not find the friend.

Revenue Officer Grimmer said the bales of hides came from Canton on the steamer Haiphong.

ARSENAL LOSE VALUABLE GROUND OVER WEEK-END

TEAM HAS STILL TO JUSTIFY ITSELF

SUNDERLAND AND MANCHESTER CITY NOW THE IDOLS

SATURDAY'S CHIEF GAMES

(By "Veritas").

The Arsenal's stock slumped with a vengeance this week, when, following a none too convincing home win against West Bromwich, the all-star London team suffered their first defeat of the season at Blackburn on Monday. Sympathies will be with Mr. George Allison, successor to the late Mr. Herbert Chapman as mentor of the most expensive football outfit in the country. He is carrying a heavy responsibility, including two very expensive internationals who have not yet completely vindicated the outlay of money made on their transfers.

Meanwhile Sunderland continue serenely to pursue the path of victory, and with a record of three wins and one draw in their last four matches, have every reason to regard the outlook with perfect equanimity. They not only remain the one team in the first division undefeated, but are playing football good enough to allow them to enjoy this proud boast for some time to come. It is not likely that Derby will upset the leaders this week, for the County are the visitors, and visitors to Roker Park this year must expect to receive much change.

CHELSEA'S DEFENCE.

Preston's continued good form is further indication of the splendid qualities of this young team. Chelsea offer themselves as fodder this week, and while the Pensioners' defence remains as full of holes as a fishing net, as one London critic described it, only one thing can be anticipated.

Neither good nor bad, but decidedly indifferent, the Spurs proving an enigma for their supporters.

FINAL CRICKET AVERAGES

NAWAB OF PATAUDI HEADS BATTING

PAINE BOWLING

Under a qualification of eight completed innings, the Nawab of Pataudi, the Worcestershire amateur cricketer, heads the English first class cricket averages for the 1934 season. The Nawab, however, only battled 15 times, whereas Hammond, who finished second, played 35 innings.

Paine, the Warwickshire bowler, who has been honoured by being selected to tour with the M.C.C. team in the West Indies, tops the bowling averages, which carry a qualification of 10 wickets.

Larwood earns second place and Verity, Yorkshire spin bowler, third. The latter headed the averages for practically the whole of the season.

The leading averages as cabled by Reuter are:

Swimming Records Lowered

SOME AMAZING FEATS

World swimming and track and field records went by the boards to-day in meets held here and in Osaka.

Reizo Koike, holder of the world's 200 metre breast stroke record, cracked the 100-metre breast stroke record here to-day in the intercollegiate swimming meet with a mark of 1 minute 13.8 seconds. He also swam the 200-metre breast stroke event in 2 minutes 43 seconds which is but four-tenths of a second slower than his own world's record.

Shozo Makino smashed the recognized world record for the 800 metre free style swim when he negotiated the distance in 10 minutes 12 seconds. The recognized record for the event is 10 minutes 15.6 seconds, held by Jean Tarris of France.

In the Osaka dual meet between Japan and a group of American athletes, Kenkichi Oshima and Masao Harada both bettered the world record for the hop, step and jump held by their countryman, Chuhel Nambu. Nambu's mark was 15.72 metres or 51 feet 7 inches, made at the World Olympic Games at Los Angeles. Oshima won the event with a jump of 16.82 metres or 55 feet 2 inches, with a mark of 15.75 metres.

PREFERS TENNIS TO ANYTHING ELSE

PLAYS LACROSSE TO KEEP HERSELF FIT

INTERESTING INTERVIEW

New York.

What does a tennis star think about? When she is pretty and twenty and comparatively new at tournament tennis, as young Kathleen Stammers of England is, she has a variety of things on her mind. There's her back hand stroke, for one thing, that she is trying hard to improve. Then there is Coney Island that she is more anxious to see than any other spot in America. And there is dancing which she adores and has to give up during a tournament. And doubtless some thought she gives, too, to her personal appearance.

For the youthful Kay, fourth ranking player of England, making her debut on American courts, in this year's tennis beauty sensation. Not in years have the galleries made so many flattering comments about the appearance of a player.

"Even her falls are graceful," one of her admirers insisted, which remarks when repeated to Miss Stammers at Forest Hills Inn where she is staying, caused her deep blue eyes to open even wider and her silvery laugh to ring out. She has brown hair brushed back from her face and worn in a long curly bob and a small heart-shaped face.

"I've been playing tennis since I was 10 years old," she said, precisely. In her clipped English voice, answering the inevitable question. Kay has a good deal of British reserve and while she always is perfectly polite, she limits her answers to exactly what you ask her.

WON FIRST TOURNAMENT AT 14.

"I am an only child and my father and mother taught me to play because they were interested in tennis themselves. We never thought of my taking it up seriously. Then, quite by accident, when I was 14, I won the Junior championship of my county, Hertfordshire. Next year I won it again and played in the British Junior tournament.

"I didn't win, but the national organization took note of me and gave me coaching. That's really all there is to it, except that I love tennis and, in fact, all games. "In winter I play lacrosse, which helps keep me in good physical condition. I play at golf, and I swim of course. But I'm not very good, really, at other games."

GLAD SCHOOLING IS ENDED.

She wasn't very good at lessons, either, the star insists, because games interested her so much. She has recently finished boarding school and she is glad. Tennis is much more fun than books. In fact, tennis is more fun than anything she has tried so far. She gave a little wriggle of pleasure at the thought.

She is great friends with the other girls on the British team and looks forward with interest to their California trip in the course of which she will visit Hollywood. "But not," she hastily disclaimed, "with any idea of going into motion pictures. I'm no good at all at acting. And I can't keep house very well, either. At least I've never done very much of it. No, I'm afraid I'm good for is games—well, tennis anyway."

MAKES MANY SACRIFICES.

Miss Stammers thinks 10 or 11 is about the right age for a girl to start tennis, but that she shouldn't be too serious about it at first. Yet when she does decide to go in for tournament tennis, she must know what she is doing. For, says this player, you have to give up many things you like

If you are going to succeed at all. You can't keep late hours when you're in training or playing. And you have to think of your game all the time.

"I don't diet exactly, but I do try to eat sensibly and I miss a good many parties that I should like to go to," the young tennis player admitted. "I work at keeping myself in trim, too, though I am always well. It's worth it, though—tennis is worth anything you give it. My great ambition in life is to improve my game!"

And though she hopes to get married some day, it won't be soon, Miss Stammers finished with a laugh.

Cosely Miss Stammers... as the camera caught her during the women's national championships at Forest Hills, N.Y.

How The Endeavour Took An Early Lead

FIRST PART OF GREAT YACHT RACE FULLY DESCRIBED

Mr. Sopwith's Endeavour yesterday won the second race for the America's Cup against the Vanderbilt's Rainbow. A full report of the closing stages of the great race appears on the front page, and below is a description of the contest up to the second turn.

Newport, Sept. 18.

At 11.42 a.m. the Rainbow and Endeavour crossed the starting line in the third race for the America's Cup. A drizzling rain was falling and the visibility was poor. A north-westerly breeze of about six knots was blowing at the start but diminished as the yachts nosed out into the swell.

The first leg of the triangular course is south by east on a broad reach; the second is north-west, windward, and the third, east-north-east-half-east-half-east, on close reach.

Both yachts were using mainsail, staysail and Genoa jib at the start. The Rainbow had the weather berth, but the Endeavour crossed the line first and got a length and a half ahead. She appeared to be going splendidly.

Soon after the start, the Rainbow doused her staysail.

Five miles from the start, the Rainbow tried to come down on the Endeavour and get her wind. Both vessels heeled over beautifully.

Sopwith, sailing a fine race, kept the Endeavour ahead. Half an hour after the start, the British challenger was three to four lengths ahead and was pulling away steadily.

The sea was choppy and the spray was breaking over the bows of both yachts.

At 12.30 p.m. the Endeavour set a double clew and the Rainbow immediately followed suit. Half a mile from the first buoy the challenger was still ahead and rounded the mark half a minute ahead of the Rainbow.

After rounding the mark, Vanderbilt got inside the Endeavour and took a slight lead. At 12.43 p.m. the Rainbow went on to starboard tack and the Endeavour followed suit.

SLICK WITH SAILS.

The Endeavour waited for Vanderbilt to tack. The Rainbow's crew were very slick in handling their sails. Sopwith immediately came about and took the weather berth from Vanderbilt. Both yachts were close hauled. The Endeavour regained the lead when she came about. The Rainbow was put full and by with all canvas pulling hard, but the Endeavour still had a slight windward advantage.

Sopwith seems inclined to starve the Endeavour, trying to point a little too high.

The breeze has freshened to 15 knots. It is revealed that the Endeavour tore her Genoa jib slightly during the first leg of the race.

At 1.10 p.m. after several short tacks by which Vanderbilt tried to wiggle out of a tight corner and gain the lead, both vessels went on to the port tack, the Endeavour being slightly ahead.

The Endeavour turned the second mark at six and a half minutes to two. The Rainbow turned three and a half minutes later.—Reuter.

CHINA MAY SEEK PERMANENT SEAT

DISAPPOINTED AT NON-ELECTION

Nanking, Sept. 18. Indicating that China might agitate for the allotment to her of a permanent seat on the League Council, a spokesman of the Nanking Foreign Office made an official statement to-day commenting on China's failure to secure election for another term as a non-permanent member on the Council.

He said that before the election took place China realised that immense difficulties were in her way in securing reelection, as, in achieving this object, she had to seek support from among at least two-thirds of the members of the League Assembly in accordance with a resolution adopted by the League Assembly in 1922 and another adopted in 1923.

However, China would still venture to offer herself as candidate for election because China, from the point of view of geography and population, was an important nation in Asia and was in close co-operation with the League. Unfortunately, China's belief that the majority of the member states of the League would join her in these viewpoints had not been fulfilled. The Chinese people were greatly disappointed. With China absent, the League Council would be entirely Europeanised, concluded the spokesman.—Central News Agency.

DR. KOO'S FEELINGS.
Shanghai, Sept. 18. Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to Paris, speaking on China's failure to secure election as non-permanent member on the League Council, said that it meant the defeat of the policy of co-operation between the East and the West at the League of Nations.—Central News.

The groups affected by this new order are the dying, rayon underwear, limited goods, carpet and rug industries.

The Executive Council stated that their walk-out would be called by next Monday.

An independent survey shows that 421,000 persons are idle as a result of the textile strike.—Reuter.

DEMENTED MAN RUNS AMUCK

Terrorises Residents of Tongshan.

Tientsin, Sept. 18. According to a report from Tongshan, residents there were terrorised last night when a demented man ran amuck in the streets. He dashed about from street to street, brandishing a big knife in his hand and attacking anyone in his way.

The whole city was in a panic for almost two hours as pedestrians stampeded in all directions, shops were closed and whistles blown for police help.

Despite the fact that a large force of armed police turned out, the demented man is still at large. It is reported that he has fled toward a nearby village.

Altogether, seven persons suffered knife cuts, and one has succumbed to his injuries.—Central News.

ANTI-LOCUST MEASURES

CONFERENCE APPROVES PLANS

London, Sept. 18.

A report including resolutions adopted for consideration of the co-operating Governments was before the final session of the International Locust Conference to-day.

The resolutions deal with the general scientific problems applicable to all species of locust found in Africa and Western Asia, with the special problems of each species, and the steps to be taken for their further investigation, and, finally, with the development of existing arrangements for international co-operation in anti-locust research.

The document was signed on behalf of the Governments of Afghanistan, the Union of South Africa, Belgium, Britain, Egypt, Spain, France, India, Italy and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.—British Wireless.

ORDERS FOR DIPLOMATS

JAPAN EMISSARY ON WORLD TRIP

Tokyo, Sept. 19.

According to a Rengo report, the Japanese Foreign Office has decided to send Mr. Yoshida, former ambassador to Italy, as a proxy of the Foreign Minister Mr. Hirota, to Europe and America in order to inform Japanese diplomatic representatives in those countries of the actual state of things in Japan and to establish closer relations between them and the Foreign Office.

Mr. Yoshida will leave early next month for Moscow via Siberia. From Russia he will go to Poland, Germany, Belgium, France, England and other European countries, whereafter he returns, via America. It is believed in certain quarters that he may have also a naval mission.—Central News.
